J. HAMILTON LEWIS IS DEAD

FEAR PRESIDENT MAY PUT U. S. IN EUROPEAN WAR

Wilson Conferences of 1916 Recalled.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—Is the United States to be drawn into another European war as it was in 1917?

This was the question uppermost in official Washington tonight on the eve of the return of the President to the capital tomorrow and active direction of American foreign policy in dealing with the war crisis abroad.

Europe is on the brink of war and Mr. Roosevelt is pursuing a policy of giving aid and comfort to Great Britain and France in the clash with Germany and Italy. He has committed the United States under the current administration to a policy of furnishing war supplies and giving all other aid, material and moral, to Britain and France, short of actual dispatch of American armed forces to support their forces in war with the totalitarian powers.

President's Influence Cited.

Whether the United States, involved to that extent, could avoid entanglement in a European war is problematical. The President exerts a prodigious influence. He is the master of insidious propaganda which he disseminates constantly through the government agencies and White House press conferences. If he deemed it to the best interest of America to go into a European war it would be most difficult to thwart his purpose.

Mr. Roosevelt is working in close coöperation with Britain and France in opposition to Hitler and Mussolini. Although the British government refused to support the Hoover administration's attempt to prevent Japan's rape of Manchuria, Mr. Roosevelt in his Chicago bridge speech in 1937 subscribed to the British and French thesis of imposing a "quarantine" on aggressor nations. Since that time he has outdone even the British and French in denunciation of the dictators.

Speculate on Understanding.

Whether the President has entered into any secret understandings with the British and French which would operate to draw us into a European war is a matter of widespread speculation. One such secret understanding has been exposed up to date.

The crash of a Douglas military bombing airplane last January and the injury therein of a French army officer served to disclose eventually that the President, overruling the objections of the war department, had secretly agreed that the French government should be allowed to purchase American airplanes which were being developed under American army supervision and which constituted American military secrets.

Called Strange Parallel.

In the midst of the congressional explosion over this revelation there was a White House conference that strangely paralleled the famous "sunrise conference" at the White House in 1916 which forecast entrance of the United States into the world war a year later.

The senate military affairs committee met with Mr. Roosevelt to learn his version of the understanding with France on airplane purchases. According to members of the committee, the President justified the understanding with the argument that in the event of another European war the American first line of defense will be in France. Mr. Roosevelt denied any such utterance.

Much the same thing happened in 1916. Col. Edward M. House, President Wilson's undercover diplomat, had negotiated an agreement with Sir Edward Grey, British foreign minister, that the United States would enter the war on the allies' side whenever it should become necessary to insure the defeat of Germany.

That Gentlemen's Agreement.

As framed by Sir Edward this gentlemen's agreement ran in part as follows:

"Col. House told me that President Wilson was ready, on hearing from France and England, that the moment was opportune to propose that a conference should be summoned to put an end to the war. Should the allies accept their proposal, and should Germany refuse it, the United

CABINET MEETS TODAY TO DEAL WITH CONQUEST

May Denounce Pact with Italians.

LONDON, April 9.—(AP)—Great Britain protested strongly today to Italy against the Fascist seizure of King Zog's Albanian kingdom during an Easter Sunday of urgent political, military, and diplomatic conferences.

Viscount Halifax.

In return Britain received assurances that Italy's occupation of her little neighbor across the Adriatic would be of a limited character.

The British protest was delivered orally by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax in three separate interviews with Guido Crolla, Italian chargé d'affaires.

Cabinet Meets Today.

There was an atmosphere of crisis as Prime Minister Chamberlain cut short his fishing holiday in Scotland and returned to London to deal with the latest coup in Europe.

He ordered a full cabinet session for tomorrow to deliberate on measures to halt what London feared may be further expansion by the Rome-Berlin axis in southeastern Europe.

Under consideration, it was reported, was a pledge to fight for Greek and Rumanian independence, similar to that extended to Poland, if those nations should be threatened.

May Send Warships to Corfu.

Reports circulated that London would ask Athens to invite British warships into the strategic port of Corfu, on the Island of Corfu, off the southwestern tip of Albania, for a symbolical occupation.

The admiralty issued a brief denial of other reports which it said emanated from Berlin and Rome yesterday that British naval units already had landed at Corfu.

The cabinet will consider the advisability of formally denouncing the 1938 British-Italian agreement for preservation of the present status in the Mediterranean.

[Italian officials in Rome and the Fascist press insisted the occupation of Albania did not violate the British-Italian pact. Premier Mussolini was expected to fly to Tirana today [Monday] for a triumphal entry into the Albanian capital. Italian troops in Albania encountered no resistance as they advanced into the interior and toward the frontier of Greece. Nazis in Germany attacked Britain's general policy and charged that Chamberlain knew that he could never protect Poland if she were endangered.]

Army Leaders Consulted.

The cabinet will consider the advisability of recalling parliament from the Easter recess, scheduled to extend from last Thursday to April 18. Opposition leaders have urged the recall and there were unofficial predictions that the legislators would reassemble in the middle of the week for a debate on foreign affairs.

A number of conferences took place today, in which army and navy leaders also were consulted. However, the uneasy situation tonight was termed somewhat easier in view of the Italian assurances Crolla gave Halifax.

Alarming rumors had swept London earlier that Italy planned to use Albania only as a springboard for moves against Jugo-Slavia or Greece.

Halifax told the Italian chargé d'affaires of the serious view taken by the British government of the action against Albania and of the strength of British public feeling on the subject.

Chamberlain soon after his arrival from Scotland talked with Halifax after the latter had received Charalambos Simopoulos, Greek minister to London.

Halifax conferred at the office of the committee of imperial defense in Whitehall in the afternoon with Gen. Viscount Gort, chief of the imperial general staff, and Vice Admiral A. B. Cunningham, deputy chief of the naval staff.

That Lazy Lout Is Back Again with the Birds

That lazy rascal of the bird world, Molothrus ater—the cowbird—showed up in Thatcher woods yesterday.

He was sighted on a lonely branch of an elm tree by Gordon Pearsall, director of the Trailside museum, which is on the edge of the woods at Chicago avenue and Thatcher road, River Forest. Pearsall was guiding a party of hikers on the museum's weekly nature jaunt.

"There he is," called Pearsall. "The one with the brown head and greenish black body. That's Mr. Cowbird. He's a bad one. Why? Well, he's lazy; he refuses to build his own nest. His mate lays her eggs usually in some sparrow's nest and then when the little cowbird pops out, he gobbles up the food left by the mother sparrow for her own offspring. The other birds won't have anything to do with the cowbird!"

Unethical Work by Sparrows.

As Pearsall's party strolled along the winding trails past patches of myrtle, wild goldenglow, and pepper grass, they paused once to watch two English sparrows doing a bit of unethical nest building.

With their wings flapping noisily, the sparrows were setting up their summer quarters with twigs and other accessories snatched from a squirrel's nest in a nearby maple tree.

Occasionally a cardinal darting in the sunlight radiated a vivid redness, the long tailed mourning doves uttered their mournful laments, and merry groups of juncoes twittered melodiously.

Many Signs of Spring.

The staccato call of the woodpecker, described aptly by a boy in the group as sounding "like a telephone dial," mingled with the "Caw, Caw!" of a black crow sitting on some far off branch. Tiny kinglets, only three inches long, hopped from shrub to shrub. Flicker woodpeckers swooped down from tall trees to pounce upon insects.

Indications that spring had really come were seen everywhere in the woods. Elm and maple trees already are in bloom and buds were sprouting on the apple trees scattered near the Des Plaines river. Anemones and wild ginger are beginning to push their way through the soil.

EASTER RABBIT VISITS CHILDREN, BRINGS 6 BUNNIES

Nancy Smith, 11 years old, and her brother, Scott, 8, had been told that the Easter bunny might visit their home at 2411 Park place, Evanston. But they didn't expect the surprise Mother Nature prepared yesterday.

Their father, Dr. Wilbur Scott Smith, noticed a pile of fluffy fur in a flower garden near the garage. Investigating he found a rabbit warren. And inside were six tiny new born cottontails.

The mother rabbit was not on hand, but she had fashioned a snug warm nest by plucking out bunches of her own fur. And to protect her young Molly cottontail sprinkled fragments of a fragrant weed in the fur to ward off other animals. Nancy and Scott said they planned to take good care of the bunnies until the mother returns.

Hunt Fanatics for Daubing Nazi Slogans in Evanston

Evanston police were searching yesterday for vandals who painted swastikas and Nazi slogans on several store windows and sidewalks in the suburb. The word "Jude" [Jew] was found painted on the front window of the Bond-Lehman company, electrical contractors, at 620 Grove street. Swastikas were daubed on the front door of Emil Dullin's home at 1623 Greenwood avenue, and on a delicatessen window at 1400 Ashland avenue. On several sidewalks were painted the words "Heil Hitler."

Fence Goldfish to Save Public from Own Folly

A temporary fence was erected yesterday around the gold fish pond in the Garfield park conservatory. It isn't for the protection of the gold fish from gold fish eating fans, but for the protection of visitors. On some occasions the crush has been so heavy at the conservatory that several visitors have been pushed into the pond. More than 25,000 persons visited the conservatory yesterday.

Bad Boy Gone, Not Forgotten by Policemen

Policeman Herman Stoike was deep in grief last night as he drove the North Damen avenue station's paddy wagon around and about. He eyed each miscreant somberly. He gazed at his police associates with mistrust. For Peck's Bad Boy was gone.

Policeman Stoike and his confidante, Peck's Bad Boy.

The Boy, dressed in the blue suit and white hat of a sailor, disappeared from Policeman Stoike's car in front of the station. In spite of the Bad Boy's wooden head and his uncomfortable habit of making saps out of Stoike's associates, Stoike loves him like a son. For Stoike is the Edgar Bergen of the police department and Peck's Bad Boy is his Charlie McCarthy.

Clubs to Be Disappointed.

There is a high school in Wisconsin whose graduating class will be downcast, too, to say nothing of several dozen neighborhood clubs and civic organizations before whom Stoike promised to appear in his unofficial rôle of entertainer.

"It's professional jealousy, that's what it is," moaned the wagon driver. "Some one has pinched The Boy to have his face copied by a wood carver.

"Of course I've got other dummies, but it won't be the same. I'll tell you, when you talk to one dummy as long as I have to this dummy you get so no other dummy will do."

He Has Some Suspicions.

He intimated, too, that it might just be possible The Boy wasn't so far away. Stoike may have been thinking of the innumerable practical jokes he and his fugitive from a buzz saw have played on his associates. The associates looked pained at Stoike's intimation and offered alibis.

Peck's Bad Boy is described as forty inches tall and weighing about twenty-five pounds.

Horner Home; Happy and 40 Pounds Lighter

BY PERCY WOOD.
(Picture on page 2.)

Gov. Henry Horner, looking far better than had been expected after his long and severe illness, arrived in Chicago last night from Florida. A crowd of more than 500 persons, headed by Mayor Kelly, met him as he stepped from the Dixieland of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway at the Dearborn station.

Anne Lou Boozer, Gov. Horner's nurse.

Home after four and one-half months of isolation, the governor beamed his happiness and said he was delighted to get back. Although he has lost forty pounds, moves slowly, and says his legs tire easily, he talked in his old animated style.

Will Work an Hour a Day.

Gov. Horner said he felt fine, that his heart trouble was much better, and his blood pressure reduced. He will go to Springfield today or tomorrow. Probably he will spend most or all his time in the executive mansion. His physicians will allow him to work only an hour or so daily on state business. His nurse, Miss Anne Lou Boozer—young, but a stern disciplinarian—proposes to see that he does just that.

Accompanied by the mayor; James M. Slattery, chairman of the commerce commission; Attorney General John E. Cassidy; the governor's uncle, Eli Straus, and a dozen others, the governor was taken to the Congress hotel where Dr. Maurice Rubel examined him and found he had stood the trip well.

The one saddening circumstance of the return was the death of United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis. The governor issued a statement expressing his sorrow.

Thanks All for Kindness.

"I want to thank every one for their kindness during my illness," he told reporters. "Lieut. Gov. Stelle has been fine, and the legislature has been fine. The fact that so many people came to see me tonight is like a tonic. Now that I am breathing this good Illinois air again and have Illinois soil beneath me [tapping his foot] I'm gaining every minute."

The governor said he had not been able to consider political or legislative matters, so he couldn't comment at length on the situation in Springfield. Some believe his organization has been in danger of disintegrating. What his return will mean in a political sense remains to be seen.

Horner officially became governor at 4:29 o'clock yesterday afternoon when his train crossed the state line from Indiana near Danville. At that moment he turned to John T. Casey, the secretary who has ruled him with an iron hand during his illness and, with mock seriousness, snapped: "Now, young fella, I'm boss again."

Surprised at Appearance.

Newspaper men who have covered the governor's activities since he took office in 1933 were agreeably surprised at his appearance when he walked down the train aisle to meet them at Nashville. Gone were the heavy jowls and the impressive bay window.

"A good riddance," the governor said, slapping his reduced front. He said his strength hadn't returned as rapidly as he had wished, but attributed this to the fact that he has spent most of his time since last November on his back or in a reclining chair.

Mr. Horner feels that at the depth of his illness, which was induced by a heart attack, he was close to death. This knowledge has stripped him of some of the headstrongness that characterized his actions when he was well. He has had a bad scare and now will do what he is told to do by his doctors.

News of Session Withheld.

Only within the last few days has the governor been permitted to read newspapers. He has not yet been informed, in detail, of the progress of the legislative session. Everything was done to isolate him during his rest in Miami Beach. The only visitors were a few old friends. Even when he was well enough to get out of bed, the governor's realm extended no farther than his garden.

There he sat in the sun day by day, with Casey and Miss Boozer taking turns reading to him.

SENATOR HEART ATTACK VICTIM IN WASHINGTON

Stricken on a Train After Visit Here.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—James Hamilton Lewis, senator from Illinois for fifteen years and a Democratic party leader of national prominence, died suddenly tonight of a heart attack brought on by asthma from which he had been suffering.

Senator Lewis went to Chicago on March 30 for the city election on April 4, and returned to Washington this afternoon. He had been ill on the train and upon his arrival Mrs. Lewis who met him at the station found his condition so alarming that she had him taken directly to Garfield hospital.

Two hours later he was so much better that physicians pronounced him out of danger and the senator and Mrs. Lewis prepared to leave for their apartment at the Mayflower hotel. Before these arrangements could be completed, however, the senator was seized with another asthmatic attack in the course of which he expired at 8:35 p. m.

Hold Funeral in Senate.

As a mark of respect to the memory of the senator, who occupied the post of Democratic whip, the senate will recess tomorrow as soon as it convenes and receives formal notice of his death from his colleague, Senator Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.].

The funeral will be held in the senate chamber on Tuesday or Wednesday. This is an honor accorded to a senator only three or four times in history. In deference to a wish the senator expressed to Mrs. Lewis only a few weeks ago he will be buried in Arlington National cemetery, an honor to which he was entitled as a veteran of the Spanish-American war. He said he did not want to be buried below ground, that he wanted a mausoleum.

Senator Lewis for years made a practice of evading queries as to how old he was and his exact age has been a topic of speculation. The last mention of his age in "Who's Who" was in the 1906 volume which gave the date of his birth as May, 18, 1866, making him 73 years old next month, but there is a general belief that he was ten years older than that. In 1897, when he first entered congress the year of his birth was given as 1863, but this later was changed to 1866.

Stricken with Pneumonia.

Senator Lewis had been a sugerer from asthma for years, but otherwise his health had been good in the last year or two. Three years ago he was stricken with pneumonia while traveling in Russia. Mrs. Lewis, who accompanied him on the trip, despaired at one time of saving his life, so primitive were the medical resources of Moscow. He not only survived but returned to the senate more vigorous than he had appeared in years.

The senator announced last summer that he intended to resign from the senate this year, three years before the expiration of his term, and to retire from public life. It was not because of his health, however, that he contemplated this step. He said that obligations to his family dictated his retirement from office to resume the practice of law. A few weeks ago, when asked if he still intended to resign, he indicated that he had changed his mind. He said that on account of the critical state of international affairs he felt it his duty to remain at his post.

Senator Lewis was one of the most colorful figures in the public life of his time. His flaming red beard, jocularly dubbed "pink whiskers," was known from coast to coast and the beige waistcoats and mauve gloves he affected equally were famous. A sense of humor that enabled him to take a whimzical view of his own idiosyncracies endeared him to two generations of politicians.

Characteristic is the story told of the assignment he was given years ago to address a political meeting in one of the toughest neighborhoods back of the stockyards. Many a speaker had been roughly handled in that region and party spellbinders had learned to shun a billing there.

But not J. Ham Lewis. He took the assignment and appeared at the hall in faultless attire, including a morning coat, striped trousers, spats, a silk hat, and a walking stick. He addressed the rough men before him not as inferiors, but, if anything, as his superiors. He gave them thirty minutes of polished oratory and they loved it and afterward crowded forward to shake his hand before he tapped his topper, pulled on his gloves, and departed amid cheers.

In both the Wilson régime and in that of Franklin D. Roosevelt Senator Lewis was a prominent figure on Capitol hill. In general, he was a supporter of the administration, but on occasions he did not hesitate to break with the President on important questions. Thus he opposed President Roosevelt on the world court question and on the St. Lawrence seaway treaty. He was a severe critic of the European nations for defaulting on their war debts. Of late he also had been critical of the policy of the Roosevelt administration, particularly the trend of that policy toward intervention of the United States in European affairs. As a member of the senate committee on foreign relations he took a prominent part at all times in the consideration of foreign policies.

Son of Confederate Soldier.

Senator Lewis was born in Danville, Va. His father was a confederate soldier. As an infant he was taken by his parents to Augusta, Ga. He was educated at the Houghton school there and at the University of Virginia. In Savannah, Ga., he was admitted to the bar at an early age.

As a young man Mr. Lewis left Georgia and traveled to the state of Washington, settling in Seattle. There he began at once to take an active part in politics and was elected to the state senate. In 1892 he was offered, and declined, the Democratic nomination for governor of Washington.

His name was placed in nomination for the vice presidency at the Democratic convention of 1896 and again in 1900. Elected as congressman at large from the state of Washington in 1896, he was the author the following year of a resolution favoring the recognition of Cuban independence. Then when the Spanish war started he joined the colors and became a lieutenant colonel of militia.

For a time he served on the staf of Gen. Brooke in Cuba and with Gen. F. D. Grant in Porto Rico and the Philippines.

On his retirement from military service he was appointed by President McKinley to represent the United States in a dispute with the Canadian authorities over collections of duties at the northwest border, and later was made a member of the Alaskan boundary commission.

Mr. Lewis moved to Chicago in 1903. Two years later he was city attorney and assistant corporation counsel and an active member of the Democratic party in the state.

Friend of President Wilson.

In 1912 he was first elected United States senator from Illinois. Once in the capital he became the Democratic whip in the senate. As the whip, it was his duty to hold the party's voting strength readily available during floor ballot tests. He held this honor until a Republican landslide carried him out of office in 1918. The candidate of the Democrats for governor in 1920, he ran 200,000 votes ahead of his ticket, but was defeated.

While a senator he was a close friend of President Wilson and represented the President in conferences with Gen. Pershing and the allies abroad during the war. At one time he was offered the ambassadorship to Belgium but declined.

From 1920 to 1930 he was active in the practice of law in Chicago. Known as an effective advocate before judges and juries, he was the author of several legal works.

Gains Slowly After Operation.

In 1930 Mr. Lewis defeated Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick [now Mrs. Albert Gallatin Simms], whose husband, Medill McCormick, had taken his senate seat in 1918, for the senate. His strength aided in carrying over a number of Democratic county candidates throughout the state. Later, in the campaign of 1934, he was valuable to the party as chairman of the Democratic senatorial committee.

In the 1930 campaign Mr. Lewis complained of a throat illness. Two years later he underwent an operation for removal of his tonsils, and after a slow recovery accepted a government mission to Europe. He fell ill again in Paris and delayed his return until October. After his return he was again confined to a hospital, but against his physician's advice attended the opening of congress in December.

During this term of the senate, Lewis was again the party whip. In that capacity he supported, with few departures, the Roosevelt administration policies.

His most outstanding difference with the administration was in connection with Mr. Roosevelt's efforts to procure senate ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada. His vigorous opposition was credited with great weight in the defeat of the measure. Senator Lewis also steadfastly opposed America's adherence to the world court.

On occasion the senator made quiet verbal thrusts at Huey P. Long. In one of Long's last filibusters, the Louisianan, weary after long hours of talking, told the senate:

"I'm willing to keep right on here, because I haven't any place to go."

Senator Lewis interrupted him to ask:

"Does the senator from Louisiana know where his colleagues would like to have him go?"

One of Lewis' greatest friendships in the senate was with Borah of Idaho. The two became acquainted in the west years before Lewis went to Washington, D. C., and their friendship weathered many conflicts that arose between them as members of opposing parties.

Senator Lewis was reëlected by a large majority in 1936. After the ballots had been counted he asserted the result should not be interpreted as a mandate for the New Deal to inaugurate projects like the old NRA and AAA.

He opposed President Roosevelt on the court packing bills and made several speeches in his last years urging the abolition of "unnecessary" taxes. He inveighed against sitdown strikes.

Studies Foreign Affairs.

The senator continued his old interest in foreign affairs until the last. He advocated a strong navy and demanded that foreign nations pay their war debts. Trade pacts with debtor nations aroused his ire, and he was severely critical of these agreements.

In speeches Senator Lewis' courteous bearing and dignity were always maintained. It has been said of him that he greatly detested the appellations of "Jim Ham" or "J. Ham," which were frequently used as abbreviations of his name. Another matter of remark has always been his disinclination to talk of James Hamilton Lewis as a person. He was one always ready to discuss issues; never ready to talk personalities.

Mrs. Lewis was Miss Rose Lawton Douglas, Sylvania, Ga., to whom he always gave credit for his advancement. She and Senator Lewis were married fifty years ago.

A KIND PUBLIC SAVES RED THE THIEF FROM DEATH IN A GAS CELL

Red the Thief is going to have another chance. This was decided yesterday by Pound Master Robert Forejt after fifty persons called the city dog pound asking executive clemency for Red, who had been sentenced to death in the city's new gas chamber.

Although Red is half police dog, he ran up a big record of habitual crime in the neighborhood of his home, 5415 Giddings street. On Friday he brazenly ignored Jefferson Park police, called to investigate his thefts of clothing and rugs, and walked off with another rug from the back porch of 4754 North Long avenue right under their noses. That was too much for Capt. Herbert Burns as well as Red's owners, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Pabst. The latter agreed to let justice take its course.

Yesterday, however, public sentiment ran so high that pound officials said Red probably would be turned over to the Orphans of the Storm animal shelter.

TRY PARKER ON BOGUS MONEY CHARGE TODAY

Frank J. Parker, the millionaire bootlegger, and Gus Englehardt, now a convict serving a sentence for counterfeiting, are scheduled to go to trial today before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on a counterfeiting charge. Parker was recently acquitted by a jury in the state courts on a charge of plotting to pass a half million dollars' worth of fake American Express company money orders.

Parker's present case grows out of the digging up of $17,888 in bogus $20 bills on the Tam o' Shanter golf course in Niles. The fake money was printed from plates made by Count Victor Lustig who is now serving a twenty year sentence at Alcatraz prison.

EXPECT HORNER TO FILL SENATE POST THIS WEEK

Appointee Will Serve Less than Two Years.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Under the Illinois statutes, Gov. Henry Horner will appoint a successor to Senator James Hamilton Lewis, who died in Washington, D. C., last night, and this appointee will serve until the next congressional election in November, 1940. At that election a senator will be chosen to fill the two year vacancy until the regular full term election for this seat in 1942.

Therefore the subject which politicians began to discuss as soon as the death of Senator Lewis became known was the governor's choice of a senator to go to Washington for the next 20 or 21 months. The Roosevelt administration, it was reported, is anxious that there be no unnecessary delay. For that reason it is believed the appointment will be made this week.

The best opinion obtainable was that it will probably be made in about three days, which allows the customary interval for funeral services.

Kelly Carries the News.

Gov. Horner had returned to Chicago from Florida only a few hours before and was in his old suite at the Congress hotel when the news of the senator's death was received. It came first to Mayor Edward J. Kelly, who relayed it to the governor. Because of the governor's fatigue after his long train journey, their conversation on the subject was very brief. There was no mention of a possible successor.

Later Gov. Horner dictated this statement: "The passing of Senator Lewis is, of course, a great shock to me. I suffer a tremendous personal loss and the people of our state and nation are deprived of the services of a great statesman.

"Throughout his illustrious career he unselfishly devoted himself to the welfare of our citizens. Despite illness in recent years he continued to carry on his work in the interests of the people with the spirit of true patriotism so characteristic of him. Illinois deeply mourns the passing of this great leader."

Others Praise Senator Lewis.

Similar statements were made by Mayor Kelly, United States District Judge Michael L. Igoe, former Senator Charles S. Deneen, Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, and other leaders.

The name uppermost in discussions of a successor to Lewis was that of Judge Igoe. He was appointed to the federal bench last November and it is not known that he would consider leaving it to return to Washington, where he served as congressman at large.

If custom is followed, Gov. Horner will choose his appointee from Cook county. As a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator last year, Igoe carried Cook county overwhelmingly. In that campaign, although opposing the successful Horner candidate, Scott W. Lucas, Igoe was explicit in his indorsement of the governor as a man and an administrator.

Courtney a Possibility.

Another recent candidate whose name was mentioned is State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, but the relationship between the prosecutor and the governor is nothing like so cordial as it was during the 1938 primary. The degree of regularity shown by Courtney in the elections last fall and this spring has been seriously challenged.

If Gov. Horner goes outside political lines to find an appointee, it has been suggested that he might select Col. A. A. Sprague, who was the Democratic nominee for the United States senate in 1924.

If, on the other hand, he adheres strictly to political reasoning, it is believed he might offer the twenty months' term to James M. Slattery, his chairman of the state commerce commission.

Would Be Loss to Horner.

It is known, however, that Gov. Horner counts heavily on having Slattery at his right hand during the remainder of his convalescence, and would be loath to see him go to Washington.

Other names mentioned in discussion were those of two congressmen, A. J. Sabath and T. V. Smith, but the former is chairman of the important rules committee of the house, and the latter is new to the ways of Washington. Others spoken of were Charles K. Schwartz of the state tax commission, Attorney General John E. Cassidy, and Justice Warren H. Orr of the State Supreme court.

FORMER TEACHER DIES.

Holland, Mich., April 9.—[Special.]—Louis L. Heasley, 80 years old, well known resident of Allegan county, died at his home fifteen miles east of here today. He had been a school teacher and in later years a farm owner.

Gov. Horner as he arrived at the Dearborn station from Florida yesterday. He greeted Chicago with a broad smile, glad to be home after four months of recuperating in the south from illness.

WHEN you lose an article, it isn't necessarily its money value which makes quick recovery so important. It's the inconvenience which is so exasperating.

Whenever you lose anything of value, be sure to telephone a Lost and Found want ad to the Chicago Tribune.

Thousands of dollars' worth of property is restored each year to owners who advertise in the Lost and Found column of the Tribune.

Regardless of what you may have lost, or where in Chicago or suburbs you may have lost it, there is a good chance that a Tribune reader will find it.

Every day of the week, the Tribune is read by more than 725,000 families right in metropolitan Chicago. This is practically as many as read any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

Further, the Tribune is Chicago's big want ad marketplace, carrying far more want advertising and, as a result, attracting far more want ad readers than any other Chicago newspaper.

As an extra service to Tribune Lost and Found advertisers, all such ads are kept for three months after publication in a special register open to the public at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 S. Dearborn St. and in Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Ave.

QUIZ INCOHERENT SON IN MYSTERY DEATH OF WOMAN

Found in Areaway After Return from Tavern.

The completion of a post mortem examination today was expected to remove some of the mystery from the strange death of Mrs. Frieda Procunier, 53 years old, whose bruised body was found at the bottom of the basement stairway at 3010 Sheffield avenue early yesterday.

Her son and drinking companion of the night, Walter Procunier, 28, of 9016 Escanaba avenue, is being held by Sheffield avenue police as a material witness. The victim lived at 1020 Wellington avenue. The son had left the tavern with her shortly before her death.

The post mortem examination was begun but not completed yesterday by coroner's physicians. They expect to finish it before the inquest at 11 a. m. today. Police investigation thus far indicated that Mrs. Procunier was killed by physical shock of some sort caused by an unknown purse snatcher. The question unsolved last night was whether death resulted from a blow or a fall down the basement stairs or both.

Walter Procunier. Mrs. Frieda Procunier.

Possibly Caused by Fall.

Mrs. Procunier's nose was broken. Her right ear was almost torn off. There were bruises on her right leg and above the left knee and also about the body. Her face was severely lacerated. Police said the injuries might have resulted from a sliding fall down the stairs.

Detectives said a purse snatcher undoubtedly was involved in Mrs. Procunier's death. This theory is based in part on the fact that her purse is missing. An all day search, covering the home and alleys and passageways over an area of eight square blocks yesterday failed to recover it.

Saturday night Mrs. Procunier and her son left her home and visited a neighborhood tavern. She bought the drinks. About 2 a. m. they started for home. They took a short cut through the passageway at 3010 Sheffield avenue. Mr. and Mrs. John McNevin, who live at that address, heard Mrs. Procunier scream, "Where's my purse?" They saw an unidentified man running away. They called police.

His Mind Is a Blank.

Mrs. Procunier was dead when police arrived. They found six pennies under her body. They went to her home and found Walter Procunier sitting in a chair. A penny lay on the floor. His mother's handkerchief was found near by. Police said he was drunk. His mind was a blank as to what had happened. His mind was still a blank on the incident last night, although he was sober. Police said this was entirely possible. "I just don't know what happened," the son said. Blood stains were found on his coat. Police said he may have been pushed down the stairs with his mother, thus getting the stains.

Although Procunier was said to have had only 10 cents when he went out to drink with his mother Saturday night he had $1.57 in his pockets when he was taken into technical custody. He explained satisfactorily to police that he got the money from his mother by withholding change from a dollar for cigarets and taking money from the bar which she had put down to buy drinks for strangers. He denied he had quarreled with his mother over money, as had been charged by his brother, Werner.

Giant Bridegroom

Clifford Thompson, 8 feet 7 inches tall, and bride, Mary, 5 feet 5 inches.

Rockford, Ill., April 9.—(AP)—A circus romance resulted in the marriage today of Clifford Thompson, 34 years old, of Scandinavia, Wis., who claims to be the second tallest man in the world, and Mary Bars, 32, of Milwaukee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Hugh M. Bannen of Trinity Lutheran church as the bespectacled 460 pound, 8 foot 7 inch giant peered down at his dark haired bride, whose height is 5 feet 5 inches.

They met a year ago while both were working for a circus where Mary was a dancer and Thompson was exhibiting his ponderous frame.

Thompson, once acclaimed the tallest man in the world, lost his title to Robert Wadlow, the 21 year old Alton, Ill., giant who has attained a height of 8 feet 8¼ inches and is still growing. Early in March Wadlow weighed 491 pounds.

Quiz 2 in Miami in Murder of U. S. Woman in Havana

Miami, Fla., April 9.—[Special.]—Police tonight arrested two men for questioning in connection with the mysterious murder in Havana, Cuba, of Miss Kaye Gallegher, 26 years old, a manicure, who was hacked to pieces and decapitated. They are Charles Eye, a jockey, and R. N. [Pinky] Blackburn Jr., a trainer. For months Miss Gallegher, under whose name a stable is racing at Tropical Park here, had lived in a Miami Beach apartment with Eye and Blackburn. In January the trio went to Havana, where they are said to have continued to live together until March.

State Highway Planning Offices to Be Transferred

The office of the state highway planning survey will be transferred within the next two weeks from 20 North Wacker drive to Springfield, it was announced yesterday. New headquarters of the planning survey, headed by S. F. Barker, will be in the $160,000 addition to the highways division building on Ash street in the capital.

MAYOR TO PRESS MOVE TO LEGALIZE PLANNING BOARD

Real Powers Are Sought for City Commission.

To hasten Chicago's progress, Mayor Kelly will urge quick action to give real powers to the Chicago Plan commission, whose work in the last thirty years has had to depend entirely upon persuasion.

In making this statement yesterday the mayor said it will be necessary again to refer the proposed ordinance to the council judiciary committee at its meeting Wednesday. Several hearings on the measure were held before the committee recently, but new committees are being formed as a result of the April 4 election.

Mayor Urges Speed.

"No time should be lost in going ahead with the proposal," Mayor Kelly said. "The Chicago Plan commission will be of even greater benefit to the city than it has been in the past, when clothed with authority."

The commission was created in 1909. It has worked steadily to see that the city improvement plan conceived by the late Daniel Burnham was carried out by public officials. The proposed ordinance would reduce the size of the commission from 260 members to a workable 15 to 30 and make it an official branch of the city government. It now has no legal status.

A comprehensive plan of public improvements would be prepared by the new commission. When adopted by the council this would be known as the official plan of the city.

From French Lick Springs, Ind., where the committee on committees is reorganizing the city council, came word last night that the measure will be indorsed in this group's report Wednesday.

Seen as Definite Force.

"The Chicago Plan commission should be a definite force in municipal administration," said Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman.

"The present weakness is that the commission can plan, but it has no official voice. We are going to urge that the ordinance be adopted as soon as possible."

Col. A. A. Sprague is chairman of the Chicago Plan commission. He was named by Mayor Kelly in 1935.

"If the people want the plan commission to amount to anything it needs some authority," Sprague said. "Now it is possible for the council to pass an ordinance completely at variance with the Chicago plan. That must be changed to keep Chicago ahead."

FATALLY HURT IN FALL.

George Sahr, 48 years old, was fatally injured Saturday night when he fell while trying to capture a pigeon roosting on the roof of the three story building at 1501 Monroe street, where he lived.

Pope Makes Plea for Peace; Assails Breaking of Pacts

VATICAN CITY, April 9.—(AP)—In his first Easter message from the throne of St. Peter, Pope Pius XII. today addressed to a world fearful of war a plea for peace.

Pope Pius XII.

Speaking in Latin after mass in St. Peter's cathedral, the pontiff, apparently referring to the land grabbing powers of Europe, said:

"In no times, perhaps, as in the days through which we are passing may the words of the prophet be applied: 'They cried peace, peace, and there was no peace!' . . . . A fearful unbalanced forerunner of worse ills seems to reign in many regions: Spirits are gripped with anxiety and dismay almost as though all were on the eve of worse days.

Broken Pacts Break Peace.

"How may peace be had if, unfortunately, pacts solemnly sanctioned and the plighted word have lost that security and value which are indispensable bases of reciprocal confidence and without which ardently desired disarmament, material and moral, becomes each passing day less possible of realization?

"Facing such a dangerous storm we earnestly exhort all to return to the King of Peace, to the Risen One from whose lips we hear the consoling words, 'peace be to you.' He will give us—as he promised—peace!"

Of violence he said this:

"When arms of violence are substituted for the scepter of justice, no one need marvel at the appearance on the horizon of the longed for dawn of peace."

Asks Fight on Unemployment.

The pope urged the nations to combat unemployment, to wipe out the contrast between extremes of poverty and luxury, and to halt the spread of destructive theories, saying:

"How may full and true peace be had while even sons of the same land, frequently forgetful of their common origin and common fatherland, are so profoundly divided by a burning and implacable struggle between parties and interests? How may peace be had while so many thousands of men lack work?

"Who does not see that in such manner enormous masses are being formed which impoverishment and misery—so much more exasperating because in strident contrast with the luxury and excessive comforts of those privileged ones who do not feel the duty of helping suffering—render easy prey to deceptive mirages insidiously proposed by shrews and promulgators of destructive theories?"

Justice in Distribution.

Of the distribution of the world's goods the pope said:

"Justice requires that sacred rights of human liberty and dignity be recognized and guarded; that those goods and those riches which God has strewn in the world for the advantage of his sons be conveniently distributed."

Woman Found Unconscious in Smoke Filled Room Dies

Mrs. Elizabeth Combole, 70 years old, owner of a rooming house at 1430 Monroe street, died last night while being taken to the Jefferson Park hospital after she had been found unconscious in her smoke filled room. The mattress had caught fire. She was on the floor when firemen and police arrived. Sitting nearby was George Manning, 70, a roomer. Police said he was drunk. Police could not say whether smoke from the burning mattress or some other cause was responsible for Mrs. Combole's death.

POWERS BATTLE TO SAVE GREECE FROM DICTATORS

Paris Hears British May Land Some Marines.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 9.—Continuing their policy of trying to halt the dictators without annoying them, France and England are likely to give Greece a joint guarantee of her territory. However, England will refrain from denouncing its gentleman's agreement with Mussolini as a protest against Italy's Albanian aggression.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

This at least was the belief in well informed circles here following a day of the most feverish diplomatic activity since last September—a day which culminated ominously in an emergency meeting of the French national defense council comprising the three national defense ministers and their military staffs.

Seek to Protect Corfu.

Turkey, it was believed, may join with the western powers in guaranteeing Greece against the Italian menace and the English, to show that they really mean business, may land some marines on the Greek base, Corfu Island, which fears an Italian attack at almost any moment.

The French and British are racing against time to prevent Mussolini from seizing or neutralizing the Greek naval bases, which the British have earmarked for their own use in case of a Mediterranean war. It is realized that this diplomatic struggle for strategic positions may precipitate a military clash, but the positions are so important that the French and British cannot very well afford to lose them.

May Win Bulgaria's Aid.

Frantic efforts are being made to shake the fear-paralyzed Jugo-Slavs from the clutches of the Rome-Berlin axis, and even the hope of winning Bulgaria into a re-formed and reënforced Balkan pact backed by the western powers still exists in some quarters.

One school of thought which has many supporters in the British government, but does not seem to have adherents here, argued that the best way for the western democracies to win some lost prestige was to show they were not afraid of denouncing the Italian aggression against Albania in the name of the principles which they are supposed to represent in Europe and, in the case of England, to make this denunciation something more than a platonic gesture by tearing up her pact with Mussolini.

The British ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, communicated to the French government the note of Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano arguing that the attack on Albania was not a violation of the gentleman's agreement.

Bonnet Sees President.

If reports in circles close to Quai d'Orsay [the foreign office] are correct, the British ambassador explained at the same time that England probably would refrain from denouncing the pact on the grounds that it would be an empty gesture. But he said the London government did feel disposed to take vigorous preventive action to save Greece since the naval bases as well as Greek lives and liberties are at stake.

Despite the Easter holiday Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet was summoned to Elysee palace for a consultation with President Albert Lebrun this morning—a rare occurrence. Later, when he went to consult with Premier Edouard Daladier, he took along with him Alexis Leger, the permanent head of the foreign office. When the British ambassador called, he met the premier and foreign minister at the same time—it is an open secret here that Daladier now, for all practical purposes, is his own foreign minister.

Strength Arrayed

The relative strength of Europe's axis powers and the nations which it is believed would be members of a defensive alliance compared as to total population, total area, and gold supplies.

If war results from the present tense European situation, it is considered likely that the so-called axis nations would find themselves opposed by a defensive alliance consisting of from seven to eleven nations, led by Great Britain and France. If all eleven of these nations should band together to fight the axis nations, they would have great advantages in population, area of land, and gold supplies.

Following are comparisons of total population and land area:

GERMANS CHARGE BRITAIN IS UNABLE TO GUARD POLES

London's Policy Described as 'Chaotic.'

BERLIN, April 9.—(AP)—Sharp attacks against Great Britain's general policy persisted today as Nazis were in the midst of celebrating a two-day Easter holiday.

There were charges that Prime Minister Chamberlain knew that he never could protect Poland if she were endangered. Poland herself for the present lay in the background of Nazi displeasure.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler in his Bavarian mountain-top retreat was observing the movements of Foreign Minister Josef Beck of Poland, who returned to Warsaw yesterday from London, before deciding how to counteract the British-Polish mutual assistance pact—if Poland permits it to be completed.

Gives Poland "a Chance."

It appeared that the Fuehrer was giving Poland a chance to back down.

While leaders in other capitals were conferring busily, only watchmen in vari-colored uniforms were seen in the Wilhelmstrasse.

There was a tendency to make fun of what Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter called "the stubborn high fever that has seized public life in England, the United States, and France these weeks."

The Fuehrer's newspaper said this was "an illness that cuts off normal feelings and powers of reason and makes the victim a plaything of hallucinations and fright."

Calls British Policy "Chaotic."

The most pungent anti-British attacks were by Rudolf Kircher, editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung.

"The present policy of the British empire," he wrote, "has lost all sense for us. England's policy is chaotic and much more uncertain and unstable than French policy.

"London's policy is so wretched and illogical that Adolf Hitler's task in making it easier for Englishmen to slip out of the shackles put about them by bungling and uncontrollable peevishness has been made much harder.

"Englishmen are shouting, not from strength, but a feeling of weakness. Chamberlain knows that if Poland is endangered [an arbitrary premise insofar as Poland does not endanger herself], he can never protect her.

Says Pact Is Ambiguous.

"The guarantee formula [the British-Polish mutual defense agreement] accordingly is ambiguous. But how could the English government bring a wholly apathetic people to permit an increase in armaments and sacrifices if it told the people the truth?"

The British government, he said, should tell the people that England no longer had any business in eastern Europe.

ARGENTINA WILL PUSH TO FINISH PROBE OF NAZIS

Search for All Facts, President Orders.

BUENOS AIRES, April 9.—(AP)—President Roberto M. Ortiz of Argentina pledged today an investigation "embracing every nook and cranny of the nation" into alleged German attempts to challenge Argentine sovereignty over Patagonia.

President Ortiz.

In an interview, he said he wished to reduce "to just proportions" the significance of the inquiry launched at his behest on March 21 after receiving a photographic copy of a document purportedly signed by German agents.

The alleged agents suggested to Nazi party authorities in Munich "hypothetical annexation" of Patagonia, 257,058 square miles of potentially rich land in southern Argentina.

Denied by German Embassy.

The German embassy has denied that Germany had intentions of annexing Argentine territory or had "aggressive intentions" against this republic.

"When the investigation is completed," President Ortiz said, "we shall have a clear idea of what our steps should be. You may be sure the investigation will be complete, embracing every nook and cranny of the nation and with every element properly weighed. Our courts have the power to conduct a searching inquiry."

Alfred Mueller, chief agent in Argentina of the German Nazi party, already has been arraigned formally on a charge of threatening the sovereignty of Argentina and threatening to involve the nation in war.

ITALIANS REJECT INTERFERENCE IN ALBANIAN GRAB

Duce Expected to Fly to Tirana Today.

ROME, April 9.—(AP)—Great Britain sought further information today on Italy's military occupation of Albania to weigh its effect on the European lineup. At the same time it was hinted Premier Mussolini might make a triumphal entry into Tirana tomorrow.

Earl of Perth.

An official announcement said all Italian radio stations would relay a Tirana broadcast tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. [6:30 a. m. Chicago time] if the weather permits.

This was interpreted to mean that, if weather and Albanian conditions permit, Mussolini would fly across the Adriatic sea to Tirana for a ceremonial announcement that Albania is part of the Italian empire and possibly to offer the crown of Albania to King Victor Emmanuel.

British Envoy Sees Ciano.

The earl of Perth, British ambassador to Italy, called on Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano soon after Ciano returned by plane from Tirana, where he had gone to help establish Italian rule.

British circles indicated the ambassador refrained from suggesting that occupation of the little kingdom violated the British-Italian friendship accord, but had expressed his government's desire for full information on the situation because of its effect in the present status in the Mediterranean.

Ciano was believed to have assured Perth that Italy had no intention of harming British interests in the Mediterranean or of violating the British-Italian accord.

Denies Violating Pact.

Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia of Milan, said: "There has been no violation of English interests. The British-Italian accord was not violated since Rome has no intention of making use of what happened to compromise such interests."

Diplomatic circles regarded this as an attempt to dispel fears Italian troops in Albania might be used for further expansion, such as seizure of the Greek island of Corfu, south of the Albanian frontier.

Italians rejected any interference in their assumption of control over their little Mohammedan neighbor, and reassured other anxious Balkan states that the "Good Friday invasion" was not a hostile gesture toward Jugo-Slavia.

Reassures Jugo-Slavia.

Il Popolo d'Italia said that Italy's action in Albania, far from being a move against Jugo-Slavia, was undertaken for the welfare of that state and for the preservation of good relations between Albania and Italy.

The Turin newspaper Gazetta del Popolo published reports that Britain was trying to get Greek permission to fortify Corfu, a proposal it said had been taken to Athens by the archbishop of Canterbury. He is cruising in the Mediterranean aboard J. P. Morgan's yacht.

The authoritative Fascist writer, Virginio Gayda, asked if Britain perhaps intended to push her domination into the Adriatic or plans "a scheme of offensive encirclement against Italy as well as Germany."

"Italy does not know and does not recognize any particular vital interest of Britain and France in Albania," the writer said in La Voce d'Italia.

He declared that Italy considered she had stayed within the letter and the spirit of the agreement with Britain. Charging that Britain had designs for an economic and strategic monopoly over Albania, he said that if she wanted to take a view in opposition to Italy she also would have to take the consequences.

Foreign circles continued to interpret the Italian thrust in King Zog's lost realm as a warning to Greece and Jugo-Slavia against aligning themselves with France and Britain. Albania is wedged between Jugo-Slavia and Greece.

Thirteen wounded Italian soldiers were brought to Bari, Italy, for hospital treatment. They were the first casualties of the campaign to return to Italy.

Italian Troops March On.

TIRANA, April 9.—(AP)—Italian troops in columns of motor trucks rolled into the back country of mountainous Albania today to establish firmly Fascist domination of the conquered Balkan kingdom.

Fascist authorities said Albanians accepted the occupation without resistance wherever troops went and that the provisional government committee, set up here after the flight of King Zog to Greece, was submitting entirely to Italian orders.

Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, commander of the Italian expeditionary force, telegraphed Premier Mussolini his orders had been carried out "with Fascist faith and spirit."

Il Duce replied: "The expeditionary corps under your orders operated with Fascist decision showing the power of Italian armed forces and guaranteeing on the other shore of the Adriatic fundamental interests of the fatherland."

Flyers Report "All Quiet."

Italian planes flew over the country all morning. Aviators reported all quiet.

One of the motorized columns moving into the interior occupied Agirocastro, in the south near the Greek frontier. Another proceeded to Koritza, in the east also near Greece.

Large groups of Albania's primitive soldiery were reported surrendering their arms to Italian army authorities and Albanian police who now are under Italian control.

Italian and Albanian flags flew side by side from many buildings. Shops remained open by order of the authorities.

While the expeditionary forces spread through the country, Tirana was policed by Italian grenadiers whose regiment was flown in yesterday.

Royal Family at Saloniki.

SALONIKI, Greece, April 9.—(AP)—Albania's fleeing royal family today arrived in Saloniki from the border town of Florina with their future still a grim question mark.

King Zog, Queen Geraldine and their 4 day old son, Prince Skander, took quarters in this Aegean port while ministers of the deposed Albanian government continued on toward Athens.

Before leaving Florina, where Geraldine halted first in her flight from the Italian invasion, the exiled queen thanked "the people of the United States for their sympathy" in a special message.

The Queen's Message.

"The crown prince and I are well," her message said. "The king has joined us. We are starting today for Saloniki. I thank the people of the United States for their sympathy."

The queen, whose mother was an American, spoke from a picturesque little mountain inn at Florina where a makeshift ambulance had brought her yesterday with her new-born son.

Premier Koca Kotta, who accompanied the royal family into exile, said: "We probably will go abroad."

The royal family's immediate plans, however, were to stay in Salonki for several days and then proceed to the summer resort of Portaria, but their stay in Greece was not expected to be long.

Britain Protests Italian Grab

(Story in adjoining column.)

Great Britain yesterday protested to Italy against Fascist seizure of Albania. Italians in Rome rejected any interference in the occupation of the small kingdom and denied the conquest violated the British-Italian agreement for preservation of the present status in the Mediterranean. Captions on map indicate day's developments. Italian troops advanced toward Albania's frontier with Greece as Premier Mussolini prepared to fly to Tirana today for a triumphal entry into the Albanian capital.

BALKAN ENTENTE SEEKS GOOD WILL OF BULGARIANS

Plans to Take Up Nation's Territorial Claims.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 9.—(AP)—An agreement by the Rumanian and Turkish foreign ministers in Istanbul to maintain the Balkan entente today was viewed in Bucharest as presaging new efforts to win the good will of Bulgaria. A statement issued here said Rumania agreed entente efforts to achieve coöperation with all Balkan states should be continued.

Though Bulgaria was not mentioned by name, diplomats believed the time was near for reconsideration of Bulgarian claims for territory and economic concessions.

[Greece, Turkey, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia comprise the Balkan entente which last year made new friendly gestures toward Bulgaria, recognizing her right to rearm despite world war treaty limitations.]

Official Rumanian quarters seemed less alarmed over the possibility of complications developing from Italy's seizure of Albania. Rumanians agreed, however, that the political and strategic positions of Jugo-Slavia and Greece were made more difficult by the presence of Italian forces in Albania.

Jugo-Slavia Has No Fear.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 9.—(AP)—The Jugo-Slav foreign office today reiterated assertions that the nation's interests were not menaced by Italian occupation of Jugo-Slavia's small southern neighbor, Albania. Italy's thrust across the Adriatic was undertaken with the knowledge of Belgrade, the foreign office said.

The Italian minister to Jugo-Slavia, Mario Indelli, called at the ministry to express Italy's thanks for what he termed the understanding attitude of the Belgrade government.

Despite the surface calm in Belgrade, however, there were evidences of some concern. Quarters close to the government said Italian action in Albania probably would hasten Serb efforts to overcome internal disunity by appeasing the Croat minority which demands autonomy.

Greece Is Cautious.

ATHENS, Greece, April 9.—(AP)—The Greek government took a cautious attitude today on Balkan problems raised by Italy's seizure of Albania.

There have been no official hints that Greek independence might be guaranteed by a British-French front against further Italian inroads to the east. Informed London sources said such a possibility might develop.

Government officials said they realized the seriousness of the situation but were viewing the future with the utmost confidence.

Makes Plea for Independence.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 9.—(AP)—The Albanian minister to Bulgaria in a telegram to Premier Mussolini today expressed the hope some degree of Albania's independence would be preserved. The telegram was sent following a conference attended by the minister, Demil Dino, and representatives of two societies of Albanians which have a combined membership of 20,000.

Takes Dig at Democracies.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 9.—(AP)—Count Stephen Bethlen, former premier of Hungary, today gave Europe's western democracies little chance of success in joining the smaller nations of Central Europe into an anti-German bloc.

After the fate of Czecho-Slovakia, the count said in a newspaper article, nations in the Danubian basin were somewhat afraid to accept protection of democratic powers against Germany.

He held that these small nations believed they now had a better chance of retaining independence by giving Germany certain concessions.

Two British Warships Sail Away from Italian Port

SAN REMO, Italy, April 9.—(AP)—Two British warships, the battleship Warspite and escort vessel Aberdeen, left here today. They had been in San Remo for several days.

[A London dispatch said the two British warships left San Remo, Italy, in order to avoid any embarrassment which might be caused by their presence in an Italian port.]

SHOPPING HOURS: OLD STYLE

By CALEB

AMUSING enough now, perhaps. But not in those long-ago days of old Chicago when even the "gay '90's" were far in the future, and the Civil War a national cataclysm postponed for still another decade. Chicago was then a youngster of only nineteen summers—and the question of retail shopping hours had become an all-too-serious issue. Youngsters have "growing pains" . . . and this very juvenile metropolis was growing tired of keeping its retail doors open to a dilatory public long after lamplighting time.

Besides, another hot summer was coming on, and the storekeepers along what was then the city's main merchandising thoroughfare—Lake Street—recalled with poignant clarity the interminable sweltering days and close, stifling evenings when they had "waited on trade" during summers past. Already they had done something to ameliorate the winter schedule, in persuading Chicago housewives to conclude their purchases by 7 p. m. . . . Now the problem of midsummer loomed—and what to do?

Thirteen merchants of the time, over their signatures, took paid space, 77 lines on one column, and in the May 24th, 1856, issue of the Daily Democratic Press voiced their plea in a message headed: "To the Ladies of Chicago." Therein among other arguments, they reminded their good women patrons that "During the winter months we had the privilege with other classes of society to listen to many interesting lectures on important subjects, which our city was favored with during the winter evenings, and we feel every confidence that the ladies will relieve us from the long and close confinement—say 9 or 10 o'clock—during the hot season of the year."

Then, in clinching support of this plea, came the "Notice" itself, signed by employer members of "The Mercantile Early Closing Association," to-wit: "We, the dry goods merchants of Lake Street, believing it to be a benefit to our clerks and no disadvantage to our customers, do agree (providing all will do so) to close our stores at 8 p. m. from this date, May 24, until the first of December, and hope the ladies will aid us in carrying out so desirable an object, by making early purchases."

Amusing enough now to believe there was ever a time when 12- or 14-hour shopping days existed. But they did—until, some eighty-three years ago, Chicago merchants began to bring a new order out of the old.

CHINESE MENACE JAP GRIP ON CITY IN CANTON AREA

Attempt to Retake River Town of Kongmoon.

HONGKONG, April 9.—(AP)—The heaviest fighting since the fall of Canton last Oct. 22 raged today in southeast Kwangtung province where Chinese launched a two-way drive in an attempt to wrest the metropolis from its Japanese captors.

The Chinese thrusting toward Canton from the north and south were reported to have pushed back the outnumbered but better equipped invaders on both fronts.

Chinese dispatches said the offensive had carried to within 18 miles of Canton on the north and that on the southern front Chinese forces were closing in on Kongmoon, key city on the West river 45 miles south of Canton.

Land Reënforcements.

Foreign observers said the hard-pressed Japanese in Kongmoon were employing their artillery and aerial power in an effort to overcome the superior manpower of the Chinese.

At Kongmoon the observers said the Japanese had Chinese peasants at work on trench fortifications around the city and that reënforcements had been landed from Japanese warships on the West river.

The Chinese commanders were reported fighting desperately to break up the Japanese strength around Kongmoon to prevent what they feared was an impending drive on Wuchow, Chinese base 200 miles upstream on the Kwangtung-Kwangsi province border.

Destroy Chinese Planes.

SHANGHAI, April 9.—(AP)—Japanese reported they dealt the rejuvenated Chinese air forces a severe setback today with the destruction of forty-one planes in a surprise raid on Kunming, Chinese base in southernmost Yunnan province.

A naval communique said the attackers destroyed thirty-five of 100 Chinese planes caught unawares on the landing field and that six were shot down in ensuing dog fights. All the Japanese raiders were said to have returned safely to their bases.

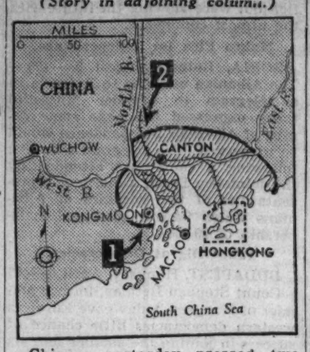
On the central China front the Japanese announced Chinese land troops had been repulsed with heavy losses in a counter attack designed to regain Wuning, Siao river port in Kiangsi province.

Minister Gets Five Years for Assaulting His Wife

Sac City, Ia., April 9.—[Special.]—The Rev. Claude D. Saunders, 55 years old, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Auburn, was sentenced last night by District Judge P. J. Klinker to serve a five year sentence at hard labor in Fort Madison state penitentiary on his conviction by a jury of assault with intent to commit manslaughter. The charge was made by his wife, Ethel, 41, mother of two sons, who told the jury that her husband choked her, beat her, and tried to soak her body in gasoline and burn her.

Drive on Canton

(Story in adjoining column.)



Chinese yesterday pressed two drives seeking to recapture Canton. On one front the Chinese were closing in on Kongmoon (1) and a force on the north was reported within 18 miles of Canton (2). Diagonal shading denotes territory held by Japanese.

Rooster Flies at Boy in Red Coat and Pecks His Face

William Hammond, 2 years old, was playing in a vacant lot at the rear of his home at 9838 Drexel avenue yesterday when a rooster flew at him. The rooster pecked the youngster three times in the face. The boy was given medical aid by Dr. Edmund F. Bennett, 7938 Cottage Grove avenue. Police believe the rooster became excited over a red coat the boy was wearing.

2,244,012 PAYING OLD AGE PENSION TAX IN ILLINOIS

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The social security board reported today that 2,244,012 Illinois workers were assessed pay roll taxes for federal age insurance in 1937. These workers in that year earned a total of $2,310,186,169, or an average of $1,029 each.

Illinois workers between the ages of 20 and 25, numbering 415,818, received $279,751,131 total wages; 186,941 between 45 and 50 received $254,237,869, and 53,821 between 60 and 65 received $65,481,636.

An analysis to facilitate administration of the old age insurance system, said the report, disclosed that 30,157,694 workers' accounts were credited with wages totaling $26,825,366,241, a national average of $890.

Average wages were higher in such industrialized sections as New England, the middle Atlantic states, and the Great Lakes region. Michigan workers had the highest average, $1,102, followed by New York, $1,042, and Illinois, $1,029.

Hotel Robbers Take $60, but Let Boy Keep 25 Cents

Michael Meroda, 13 years old, had a quarter to spend yesterday. It was the quarter he saved Saturday night when five robbers invaded the Elm Park hotel, 1531 Wicker Park avenue, where Michael was visiting his brother, Paul, a resident. Michael calmly asked the bandits not to take his quarter. They didn't, but took $60 from the hotel clerk and two other persons.

CLEARING CARVED IN JUNGLE BEGINS RUBBER VENTURE

Ford Plantation Set Deep in Amazon Valley.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FORDLANDIA, State of Para, Brazil, April 1 [by Air Mail].—On Sept. 16, 1928, the Diesel ship Lake Orwoc anchored at Santarem, Brazil, 500 miles up the Amazon river from the Atlantic. Aboard the vessel was about $1,500,000 worth of machinery, camp equipment, food, and hospital supplies. A staff of engineers and scientific workers were the passengers.

Map locates scenes of rubber growing experiment in Brazil.

The vessel's ultimate destination was what is now Fordlandia, 110 miles up the Tapajoz river [southward] from Santarem. September is the dry season here and a two months' wait was necessary before completing the trip.

Such was the physical beginning of Henry Ford's rubber venture in Brazil. Advance agents, beginning negotiations in 1926, had acquired, through contracts and leases, the rights or concession to establish a rubber plantation on 2,000,000 acres of ground for a period of fifty years. One condition was that 4,500 acres must be planted in the first three years.

Build Modern Town.

A base camp was established on the river bank of the Tapajoz, near the center of the area, and was christened Fordlandia. With typical Ford efficiency, great effort was expended in establishing a modern little city with power plant, sawmill, refrigeration, sanitary provisions, water purification, hospital, pleasant homes, school, church, stores, and radio station.

Buildings were erected with lumber obtained from the clearing. All houses were of frame construction with tile roofs. Streets were carefully laid out, concrete sidewalks put down, shubbery and flowers planted, and plantation work in general was pushed forward.

In the first six years 7,000 acres were cleared and 1,300,000 rubber trees planted. But the management had found that the mountainous country of Fordlandia was unsuited for rubber planting, mainly because of soil erosion after the land was cleared. The river's shallowness so far upstream, especially in the dry season, also was a detriment.

Explore "Jinx" Plateau.

Surveying and scouting parties explored both banks of the river all the way down to Santarem. Ninety miles to the north—twenty miles from the Amazon—on the east bank they found a wooded tableland 503 feet above the river. Even the Indians were afraid of Belterra [the beautiful land] because there was no rivulet, spring, or sign of water.

The surveying parties, however, found some springs and water draining near the river, and they knew that a well would not have to be more than 500 feet deep to yield water—later the deepest well with plenty of water was sunk only 438 feet. As a result of the investigations and negotiations with the Brazilian government a trade was made in 1934 whereby the 686,000 acres of Fordlandia farthest from the river were exchanged for an equal number at Belterra.

From the date of the exchange all clearing of forest ceased at Fordlandia and began down river. Employment at the old base dropped from a high of 3,000 persons to the present 550.

A New Base Is Built.

Repeating the work of 1928-'29, a new base was established and operations were pushed at Belterra as they were at Fordlandia. A Diesel engine was the first piece of machinery moved. Electric lights were available nine days later.

Houses were placed so that the maximum distance one would have to walk to work was three-fourths of a mile. Division or sections were arranged for each year's work or clearance. As a new area is opened up a new headquarters is established, with grocery store, market, barber shop, shoe store, and the like for the convenience of the employés.

All living conditions provided at Fordlandia have been created in Belterra except on a smaller scale, or rather starting on a smaller scale. The hospital at Fordlandia has 100 beds, and the one at Belterra forty beds. Both are up to date in every respect and well run.

Old Place for Experiments.

There are 1,100 employés at Belterra, including five American men and two women. There are four American men and two women at Fordlandia.

During the past five years, or since the expansion ceased at the old headquarters, 14,000 acres have been cleared and 2,800,000 rubber trees planted at Belterra. The old plantation will be maintained in its entirety, but will be used exclusively for research and experimental work. They are growing and experimenting with practically every known species of rubber trees at Fordlandia.

In the rubber planting the first step is to clear the grounds. A crew cleans out the small undergrowth, burning it as soon as it is dried by the tropical sun. Next the crew cuts all the heavier growth and burns it. Large trunks are not burned entirely, because it was found that excessive heat damaged the soil.

Planted Ten Feet Apart.

After the clearance is completed the ground is laid off in rows, ten feet apart. In the rows, at intervals of ten feet, the ground is loosened with a hoe and five rubber seeds are planted. Seeding time is in February and March. When the plants come up the healthiest one is left and the others are pulled out.

When the plant is about four feet high a bud or sprout of another species is taken from the nursery and grafted to the growing tree. The grafting is done to grow a better tree or one that will produce more rubber. The tree is pruned as it grows.

Only Bark Is Notched.

In the tapping process only the bark is cut. The juice, called latex, flows into a tin receptacle attached at the end of a notch which slants downward. The average jungle rubber tree produces about three pounds of rubber per year. The best tree on the plantation has produced as high as thirty-two pounds. The rubber tree's life is reckoned as thirty years.

The investment in the Ford venture to date is about 8½ million dollars. A program of expansion raising that total to 19 million dollars has been approved. Whether or not the money will be invested or whether the whole venture is successful or not is problematical. The reason officials here express doubt is because of the difficulty of obtaining native labor and Brazil looks with disfavor on imported workers.

The minimum wage paid on the plantation is more than twice that paid in seaport towns. Yet workers will come here, accumulate a few milreis [the milreis is worth about 6 cents], and depart. It seems the natives would rather live along the river banks in huts, eat fish, nuts, and tropical fruit, miles from anybody or anything, except their canoes, than come here to live in comfortable houses, pleasant surroundings, and do a day's work for good wages.

FORM NEW GROUP TO HANDLE CITY'S LEASE PROBLEMS

Council Setup Complete Except for 5 Chairmen.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick Springs, Ind., April 9.—[Special.]—The committee on committees, meeting here in a series of closed conferences to organize the new Chicago city council, today settled the chairmanships and vice chairmanships of all except five working committees. The aldermen also established a new working group which will supervise the rental of city properties for private purposes.

The new group, to be known as the committee on compensation, will take over work previously performed by a subcommittee of the finance committee. Ald. J. M. Avery [24th], organizing committee chairman, explained that the new group will enable the council to devote more attention to the rates at which public property is rented and to make possible readjustments in rates which may increase revenues. The new agency also will relieve the finance committee of a load of routine matters.

Source of Rentals.

City property is rented for loading platforms extending beyond property lines, switch tracks in alleys, and for markets. The rates are based on the value of the property as appraised by real estate experts. Leases and collection of fees have been handled by the bureau of compensation, which worked with the finance subcommittee and now will be under the council's direction through the new committee.

Ald. Edward J. Upton [30th] was named chairman of the new group and Ald. Thomas J. Daley [7th] was named vice chairman. This brings to eighteen the number of working groups organized in the council.

Among the other committees, eight chairmen were reassigned to their old posts. They are: Finance, Arvey; local transportation, James R. Quinn [50th]; utilities, J. J. McDermott [14th]; judiciary, H. L. Brody [39th]; license, T. P. Keane [31st]; police, J. P. Rostenkowski [32d]; buildings, Dorsey Crowe [42d]; schools, Henry Sonnenschein [22d].

Hartnett Replaces Moran.

The committee on committees advanced Bryan Hartnett, head of the recreation committee, to the head of the local industries group, replacing Ald. Terence Moran, who was unseated in the last election. Chairmanship of the housing committee went to Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th]. Frank Keenan [49th] got the post at the head of the consolidation committee. George D. Kells [28th] already had been appointed chairman of the traffic committee.

Of the thirteen vice chairmen selected today, only two were reappointments. They are Roger J. Kiley [37th] to the finance committee and Matt Porten [34th] to the police committee.

New vice chairmen, besides Daley, are: Local transportation, W. V. Pacelli [20th]; utilities, James F. Young [46th]; local industries, Joseph Kacena [23d]; judiciary, Frank O. Hilburn [47th]; license, W. J. Cowhey [41st]; traffic, Joseph F. Ropa [21st]; consolidation, J. S. Gillispie [29th]; building, P. J. Cullerton [38th]; housing, Edwin F. Meyer [45th]; schools, H. L. Sain [27th].

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] has the inside track for the railway terminals post and he has proposed that it be reorganized to include consideration of labor problems. If the committee doesn't run against a snag in the next twenty-four hours, it expects to complete its work in time to start for Chicago tomorrow night.

Conservation Lesson

The great auk can be seen now only in the Field museum and similar places, because it became extinct in 1844 under the fire of fishermen and hunters.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The heath hen, also on display in Field museum, was exterminated in 1932. Conservation week, to be observed this week in Illinois, is designed to protect other American birds.

Societies and individuals working for the preservation of wild animal and plant life in Illinois are devoting this week to a public educational program. Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, while acting governor, proclaimed the period conservation week.

At the Field museum yesterday Clifford C. Gregg, director, called attention to an unusual exhibit. It includes eight of the twelve species of birds known to have become extinct in North America within recent historic times, largely through the ruthless persecution of man.

"Their extinction," he said, "affords examples which, if sufficient heed be taken, may have the effect of saving other species whose existence is threatened."

Extinct birds on exhibition are the great auk, the Labrador duck, the Carolina paroquet, the heath hen, the passenger pigeon, the Guadalupe flicker, the Guadalupe petral, and the Eskimo curlew. Four others not shown are the Guadalupe caracara, the Guadalupe wren, the Bermuda petrel, and the Louisiana paroquet.

RUSSIANS MAKE BLOOD POWDER FOR TRANSFUSION

MOSCOW, April 9.—(AP)—Soviet scientists have turned blood into a powder that can be stored until it is needed for transfusions, the newspaper Bolshevik reported today.

It said the Central Institute of Haemathology and Blood Transfusion after a year's work was ready to begin clinical tests to determine the powder's value.

Blood is dried and sealed in glass containers to be liquefied as needed. The chemical and physical properties differ only slightly from those of ordinary blood, says the paper. It adds that the achievement opens immense possibilities in the sphere of blood transfusion.

FEAR PRESIDENT MAY PUT U. S. IN EUROPEAN WAR

Wilson's '16 Conferences Are Recalled.

States would probably enter the war against Germany.

"Col. House expressed the opinion that, if such a conference met, it would secure peace terms not unfavorable to the allies; and, if it failed to secure peace, the United States would probably enter the war against Germany."

President Wilson made only two changes in this agreement. He wrote the word "probably" into the text twice. Then he approved it. But not until after the war ended did the existence of this secret agreement to take the United States into the world war become known. And within eight months after making the secret agreement to take us into war Mr. Wilson had won reëlection on the campaign slogan that he "kept us out of war."

White House Conference.

This secret gentlemen's agreement by Mr. Wilson and the British foreign minister was concluded on Feb. 23, 1916. This was at the time that congress was highly wrought up over the McLemore resolution to keep Americans from traveling on armed merchant ships of the belligerents. There was a White House conference between the President and congress leaders on the 24th in which Mr. Wilson alarmed the legislators by his belligerent mood.

This anxiety precipitated the "sunrise conference" on Feb. 25. Common report had it that it was held at 7 a. m. in order to elude the watchful eyes of the press. White House records placed the meeting at 9 a. m. Among those present were Speaker Champ Clark, Representative Claude Kitchen, Democratic leader of the house, and Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Representative H. D. Flood of Virginia, chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs.

Senator Stone Rebels.

According to Kitchen's version of the conference, Mr. Wilson asserted that the time had come for the United States to enter the war. Thereupon Senator Stone said:

"I have followed you sometimes when I thought you were right and sometimes when I though you were wrong in all your policies, but I'll be damned if I follow your leadership if you propose to take us into this hell of a war."

"When I say the country should go to war, the people and congress will follow," retorted Mr. Wilson.

The President was quoted as saying further that if we should go into war we would do no more than send our fleet abroad and that our entrance into the war would not of necessity be an evil because we should be able to bring the war more swiftly to a close for the benefit of civilization.

Wilson Issues Denial.

Congressman Flood denied that he heard the President make any such statements, and Mr. Wilson issued a similar denial and wrote a letter to Senator Stone in which he asserted he had striven to keep the country out of war and would continue to do so. This letter figured in the ensuing Democratic national convention in which the President was renominated to the refrain of "he kept us out of war."

Mr. Wilson was reëlected by a narrow margin as the man who had "kept us out of war," but there is reason to believe that the result would have been far different had it been known at that time that he had a "gentlemen's agreement" with the British to take us into war.

In the early part of 1917 after the Germans proclaimed unrestricted submarine warfare Mr. Wilson moved steadily toward war. He was abetted by House and by Secretary of State Lansing, who exerted every influence to bring the United States into war on the side of the allies.

Believed People Behind Him.

Wilson visited the capitol several times to confer with the legislative leaders, some of whom sought to convince him that the country was opposed to entrance into the war. Mr. Wilson declared himself satisfied that the country would be overwhelmingly behind him in declaring war and turned his energies to whipping dissidents into line.

Mr. Wilson, according to his biographer, Ray Stannard Baker, was influenced by numerous considerations, including the state department's reports that England was threatened with financial collapse and that French morale was cracking. Also the fall of the Russian autocracy gave him the idea of saving the world for democracy.

ROOSEVELT STARTS BACK TO WASHINGTON; SCANS WAR CLOUDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Presidential Special, en route to Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was on his way back to Washington from Georgia tonight to confer with his cabinet on the possibility that Europe will face a major war crisis within the week.

The President waved a farewell to patients and old neighbors of the Warm Springs Foundation at 3 p. m. as his special eased out of the village station for the homeward journey.

Before he stepped into the door of his private car, the President said to the throng gathered to see him off: "I'll be back in the fall, if there isn't a war."

Mr. Roosevelt ended his ten day vacation slightly tanned by the Warm Springs sun and obviously improved in health. Before going to his special train Mr. Roosevelt attended Easter services in the Foundation church.

WHEELER RAKES PROPAGANDISTS AT WORK IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] said tonight that conflicting economic interests, not political idealism, is the source of the present international crisis. Discussing foreign policy with Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] in a radio broadcast, Wheeler asserted this country was being subjected to a tremendous propaganda campaign in behalf of the so-called democracies. He added:

"England and France are seeking not to preserve democracy, but rather to maintain their existing trade areas, their present territorial, and their imperialistic empires."

Pepper declared that continuance of violence, lawlessness, international brigandry, and piracy abroad would jeopardize this country's security.

Sculptress Nayan Miller Divorces Chicago Druggist

Los Angeles, Cal., April 9.—(AP)—Nayan Miller, Hollywood sculptress, won a divorce yesterday from Scott Le Roy Miller, Chicago druggist. She charged nonsupport and testified Miller, from whom she separated July 1, 1937, was "undependable, irresponsible and irritable."

POLICE AT SEA IN SLAYING OF WALKATHON HEAD

Hold Three Theories on Mystery Killing.

Without clews, police last night classified as a complete mystery the slaying of Charles Hayden, walkathon promoter, who was shot down early yesterday near the Park Casino ballroom, 3825 West Madison street.

Hayden left the ballroom at 5:40 a. m. and crossed the street on his way to a restaurant. As he reached the opposite curb one or more men alighted from an automobile parked at the curb. The car was headed east on the wrong side of the street. Shots were heard almost immediately and Hayden slumped to the ground. The car sped east in Madison street.

Before he died a short while later in the Garfield Park hospital, Hayden told police he did not know his assailants or whether they had intended to rob him.

Murder Theory Probed.

While police leaned to the robbery theory, they were investigating the possibility that he may have been slain because of a private grudge or by racketeers attempting to "muscle" into the profits of the walkathon contest which he was conducting in the ballroom.

Hayden's partner, Leo Nemerovski, 1931 Humboldt boulevard, said they had been conducting the contest in the ballroom since March 10 and had had no trouble. He and Hayden had been associated in promoting walkathons for several years, he said.

Nemerovski told Capt. Louis Klatzco of the Fillmore station that Hayden, who was a captain in the Rainbow division during the war, usually carried a pistol. Yesterday morning he left the casino without the weapon. Capt. Klatzco theorized that he may have reached unthinkingly for the weapon when the bandits approached. He was wearing a four carat diamond ring valued at $1,500, which had not been touched, and he had not been robbed.

Two Get in Car and Flee.

Witnesses said they saw two men get into the car before it sped away.

Last October, Ray Dunlap, a walkathon promoter, was robbed of a diamond ring worth $3,300 and $560 in cash after he had left the Rainbow gardens, Lawrence avenue and Clark street.

Hayden, who was 32 years old, lived at the Midwest Athletic club, Hamlin avenue and Madison street. He was the owner of several farms near Mason City, Ia., and had recently built a home near San Diego, Cal. He is survived by his widow and three children.

Burglars over the week-end broke into the home of Jack Nemerovski, 6556 Adams street, a brother of Hayden's partner. They stole jewelry and clothing valued at $2,500. Jack Nemerovski is a fire adjuster.

WARD TO SUBMIT $5,000,000 MONTH RELIEF MEASURE

Bills to increase Illinois' monthly share of the relief load from $3,900,000 to $5,000,000 will be introduced in the state senate Tuesday by Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman.

Senator Ward said he also would present measures to carry on the $3,900,000 contribution through May and June. At present the law provides that the state's share be reduced to $3,000,000 on May 1.

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, told the mayor and Ward last week that the CRA must have a loan of about $650,000 from the city treasury in order to keep relief stations open the last week in April, and that an additional million would be necessary next month.

NEW RECORDERS OF QUAKES SET UP AT U. OF C.

Two new seismographs for recording earthquakes will be assembled today in Rosenwald hall of the University of Chicago. The seismographs are mounted on a concrete column which extends sixty-two feet six inches down to bedrock, carrying quake vibration to instruments which graph the vibrations photographically.

The new instruments, supplementing one which has been in the hall since 1915, were designed by H. D. McComb of the United States coast and geodetic survey and Prof. Arnold Romberg of the University of Texas. The instruments are being installed by James H. Nelson of the geodetic survey. Milton Swenson, in charge of the United States weather bureau at the university, will supervise operation of the seismographs.

WOMAN INJURED BY FALL.

An unidentified woman was seriously injured last night when she fell and struck her head on the sidewalk at Ashland avenue and Division street. She was taken to the County hospital. She is about 44 years old. In her purse was a receipt, bearing the name of Carrie Eskew.

THE TORIES OF '76 RIDE AGAIN.

The recent testimony of Henry L. Stimson, Mr. Hoover's secretary of state, before the senate foreign affairs committee was a shocking demonstration of the subservience of many influential minds in this country to French and especially to British influences. Mr. Stimson and those who share his curious brand of Americanism are not recent arrivals on our shores; for much the most part their families have been rooted in our soil for centuries. And yet today the descendants are exerting all their thought and all their influence to reëstablish a servile colonial attitude in America.

They are more British than the British, as is characteristic of colonials. Senator Reynolds asked Mr. Stimson if it were not true that Germany, Italy, and Japan today are doing precisely what Great Britain and France have done on a grander scale. It was a rhetorical question; obviously the differences are negligible. In Mr. Stimson's lifetime he has seen the greater part of Africa and substantial chunks of Asia divided between Britain and France. And yet Mr. Stimson had the hardihood [which few Englishmen would have shown] to attempt a denial of the validity of Mr. Reynolds' point.

"You are going pretty far back into history," said the former secretary of state of the United States. It was the voice of a feudal dependent, bound to defend the honor of the British crown against all who would disparage it.

Henry Stimson was born in 1867. He was 19 years old when the British seized Nigeria; he was 20 years old when they took Somaliland; he was 21 when they took British East Africa, later to be called Kenya; he was 22 when they grabbed Rhodesia; he was 26 when British Central Africa, later called Nyasaland, was brought into the empire; he was 29 when Uganda was captured.

In 1899, when Mr. Stimson was 32 years old, the British sent an army of 350,000 men to South Africa to steal the country with its vast wealth in gold and diamonds from the Boers. Mussolini can excuse his conquest of Ethiopia by pretending that he is bringing civilization to a benighted people, but there is no parallel excuse for the crushing of the Boers, who were white men and were giving offense to no one.

A year or so before, Gen. Kitchener [later a field marshal] had been busy killing Sudanese natives with his machine guns in order to take their country from them. Mr. Stimson was 31 years old when at Fashoda on the upper Nile, British and French armed forces faced each other in hate, both seeking to extend their African dominions. That was only forty-one years ago, but in Mr. Stimson's reckoning it was "pretty far back into history."

And that was by no means France's first venture, or her last, into the business of colonial expansion. As Germany was humiliated in 1918, so France had been humbled in 1871. France sought to regain her prestige and self-respect by colonial expansion and, it might be added for purposes of contrast, was encouraged in this course by Bismarck. Accordingly, in 1887, when Mr. Stimson was 20 years old, the French seized Annam and Tonkin from China and Laos from Siam. These territories were half again as large as France and contained a population of 20 million, who have rebelled occasionally in the intervening years, but their uprisings have been put down by armed force.

France's imperial expansion took place chiefly in Africa. When Mr. Stimson was 11 years old the French grabbed Tunis. He was 18 when the French obtained their first foothold in Madagascar and he was 29 when the whole island, with an area larger than that of France, was annexed. He was of voting age when the French took Djibouti and Dahomey. When the French made their secret deal for Morocco Mr. Stimson was about to become a member of President Taft's cabinet. While he was Mr. Hoover's secretary of state he must have heard at least an occasional reference to the grab of Germany's colonies and the Arab dominions in Asia and Africa under the guise of mandates.

Great Britain, with an area of 88,000 square miles and a population of 44 million, rules an empire of more than 18 million square miles and a population of nearly half a billion. France, a country of 212,000 square miles, rules an empire 20 times as big with a population more than twice her own, most of it acquired in Mr. Stimson's lifetime. Yet the British and French colonial offices are no more convinced of the eternal justice of all this land-grabbing than is Mr. Stimson. He expresses no alarm at the prospect of risking American lives to defend the imperial possessions from the nations which covet them. There are even feudal-minded Americans who would go to war for Britain to keep the Germans from ruling the German city of Danzig, as if America had any interest in the matter.

It is profoundly to be hoped that the commonsense of our people will not desert them. If the so-called democracies of Europe wish to hold Italy and Germany in check, they can do so with their own men and their own resources. The nations immediately endangered by the Rome-Berlin axis have the preponderance of strength. If they want to defend their imperial conquests they can do so without our help.

THE DECLINING MARKET.

On March 11, less than a month ago, stocks in New York sold at the highest prices of the year. At the close of business Saturday prices were not only the lowest of the year but the lowest since June 21, 1938.

What is the explanation of this, one of the most severe market breaks of record? The threat of a general European war is at once suggested. But is that valid? A war would hurt England, immediately at least, more than the United States, but our stocks have dropped 20 per cent while British stocks were falling less than 10 per cent.

From what happened twenty-five years ago we know the impact of a real war on our markets. On June 27, 1914, the day before the royal assassination which precipitated the world war, the average price of thirty leading stocks was $81.25. There was a month and four days of international exchanges before war was declared. Thus there was plenty of time and material for a war scare market. On July 6 the kaiser told the world he would back the dual monarchy's punishment of Serbia. On the 23d Austria handed Serbia a provocative ultimatum. Two days later Russian mobilization began. By July 30, the day before the stock exchange closed for a prolonged holiday, war was clearly inevitable. But between June 27 and the close of business on July 30 stocks declined only 11 per cent. The current decline is almost twice as severe as the one before the outbreak of the world war.

Moreover, a general European war then was bound to affect our markets much more than one would now. A war between the powers a quarter of a century ago was certain to be followed by the withdrawal of large amounts of gold from our slender supplies. The threat of war now is bringing gold here, adding to our hoard which is already excessive. Then there was no federal reserve system which we now have, to rediscount paper of banks which might need to liquefy. Then world trade was so important a part of our economy that any disruption of it would lead to a serious recession and a collapse of commodity prices. Our world trade is now comparatively unimportant. And most important of all, from the standpoint of stock prices, foreigners then held a large percentage of the stocks of leading American companies. When they sold out our stocks had to give way badly. Now foreign holdings of our stocks are small.

A general European war now would stimulate the demand for many kinds of American goods. We know that, because we experienced the insatiable demand for American goods by the allies in 1915 and 1916.

In the light of all these circumstances it seems clear that not an imminent war but the domestic situation accounts chiefly for the stock market collapse of the last four weeks. The market has gone down because the administration has welshed on its promise to remove the handicaps to business which have already prolonged the depression for six years. A month ago the secretary of the treasury talked of removing what he called "the tax deterrents" to recovery. A month ago the secretary of commerce was talking of a comprehensive program to bring back prosperity. A month ago amendments of the Wagner labor relations act were on the fire. Several administration leaders said so. A month ago investment bankers still believed that the SEC would become coöperative.

As one after another of these hopes has been dashed, and it has become evident that the President is striving for as early an adjournment of congress as possible without any of the handicaps to business being removed, the market has reflected the discouragement. Students of the market fully understand that even if the fear of war should quickly pass, prices would not soon rise to the level of the middle of March, unless the national administration went about business appeasement in earnest. Words will not do the trick as they did last time.

THE ST. CHARLES SCANDAL.

The escape—or, more accurately, the departure—of four more criminals from the St. Charles "school" for "boys" has enraged the suburban communities most directly exposed to this menace. And no wonder. Thirty-three prisoners have walked away from the unwalled institution this year in less than three and a half months. The four who got away on Thursday were recaptured, but not before they had committed half a dozen crimes of theft, attempted theft, and sabotage in the neighborhood of St. Charles.

Two of the toughs were from Chicago. One of them has a record as a persistent burglar, which goes back to 1935. He has been twice paroled from St. Charles and there could have been no reason for sending him there again unless it was to invite him to escape at the first opportunity. St. Charles has done nothing in four years to reform him. The other Chicago hoodlum had been placed on probation as a first offender by the Juvenile court, had failed to make good, and had been sent to St. Charles, as if that would hold him. The other two were from Cairo. They also were graduates of St. Charles. No sooner had they been released on parole than they resumed their criminal careers and were sent back.

No one possessed of normal intelligence could have expected St. Charles to rehabilitate these habitual criminals and certainly no one could have imagined that an unwalled institution would hold them. That they were sent there is itself a testimony of the alliance of crime and politics in this state. It is a demonstration, also, of the dangerous influence wielded in the Juvenile court by social workers, the political machine, and fake humanitarians. Their hearts bleed for the incorrigibles but not for the victims.

Editorial of the Day

CANADA'S GAIN.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Canada should be congratulated on the favorable treaty she negotiated with the United States. Figures just released show that for January, the first month the pact was in effect, Canada bought 11 per cent less from this country, and the United States bought 75 per cent more from Canada than during January a year ago when there was no treaty.

It would seem proper for business men and industrialists in the Great Lakes region who are vitally affected by any reciprocal trade relations with our neighbors to the north to inquire as to the whys and wherefores of this agreement which was hailed at the time of its consummation as a new help to American employment and business.

EVEN HISTORY IS "NEW."

In addition to its New Deal, this surprising country of ours has its New History—that is to say, a school of historians who believe that history should only be written by supermen, like themselves, and that all historical works of the past should be rewritten according to their rules. A learned Frenchman named Albert Mathiez took a shot at this development several years ago in the following words:

"The New History, which comes to us from the United States, of course, declares with pride that to attain its aim its followers must be at once economists, sociologists, philosophers, and journalists, altogether omniscient; in short—Americans."

Crane Brinton, himself a member of this club, gives the rules for admission to the august fraternity in an article in the American Scholar. Here are the Musts for a New Historian:

He must master rules of evidence, chronology, geography, palæography, diplomatics [study of ancient official documents], sphagistics [study of seals], archæology, epigraphy.

He must consult eyewitnesses, concern himself with primary sources, be cautious about using memoirs and autobiographies; and extra-cautious about depending on the works of other historians.

When he has collected all possible information, including facts about what the common man of the period ate, wore, and thought, he must arrange his material into a "synthesis"—a narrative worthy of a philosopher. Above all things he should remain true to the motto of the god of the New Historians, Leopold von Ranke, a German of the last century, who declared that "he would simply show how it really happened."

We might add, from observation of the New Historian, that apparently he must also lug in "the lost frontier" as an explanation for everything that has happened in the United States since 1890, and that he must breathe, on almost every page, a prayer to "the American Dream."

SONNET TO A BACK YARD.

There is no time for writing verses now;
In spring the call of garden plot comes first.
Each morn I must inspect the cherry bough,
And try to guess how soon the buds will burst;
And then there are the crocuses and squills,
Hepaticas and bloodroot, trilliums too,
Unfolding blooms each day. The daffodils,
The tulips, hyacinths and violets blue
Must all be watched, each flower met with glee.
There's also work a-plenty to be done;
The rose and other tender things set free
From winter wraps, to be warmed by the sun.
There's raking, trimming, planting—No, I vow
There simply is no time for rhyming now.

The Street of Forty Houses.

Concerning Alta Vista terrace: My parents bought one of the houses on the street in 1901. There are forty houses in the block [between Grace and Byron streets at 1047 W.], built wall to wall. Thirty-six are two storied, four are three. The interiors of the thirty-six are identical; the same applies to the other four. There are eighteen twos and two threes on each side of the street, with the threes opposite each other in the middle of the block.

There are eighteen types of fronts in the twos, in various colors of brick. The house at the southwest end and the one at the northeast end are identical in outward appearance, the second houses from the ends the same, and so on. When the street was first opened the Milwaukee railroad ran a daily suburban train to the city, and at the north end of the Terrace maintained a station called Verona. L. W. Hitchcock.

Mr. Wilson of the Avenue.

Wilson avenue, which is famous enough to have given its name to the adjoining district officially called "Uptown," was named by John E. Wilson in honor of himself. He owned a large acreage tract which he subdivided. He was the founder of a well known firm which manufactures men's furnishings. Thus is James Pontifex [3-29-'39] answered.

PROBLEM FOR EINSTEIN.

O, some men seek to answer
The riddle of the Sphinx,
While others give their life to
Concocting brand new drinks.

And some spend all their leisure,
As well as money, too,
In raising several parsnips
Where only one once grew.

But I for years have struggled
Until I'm nearly nerts,
And still I've never been able to figure out why bowlegged dames always insist upon wearing the shortest skirts!

The White-Necked Robin of Wilmette.

Dear Linemaster: So your friends laugh at you and your robin, who comes back year after year! Here is the story of our white-necked robin. We noticed him first one fall, having a wonderful time with the overripe pears that had fallen from our little pear tree in Wilmette.

Next spring we saw the same robin, the white feathers on his neck and head making him easily distinguishable. He spent a lot of time in the pear tree, built his nest not far from it, and later brought his babies over to play and learn to fly. We missed him during the hottest summer months.

Last fall was the first time we did not see White Neck. Maybe this time he had "gone west." But we have traces of him—robins with small marks of white on their heads or necks, no doubt his descendants. J. E. O.

Show This to 'Em, Jack.

I was down in the martini belt the other evening and the talk drifted to the Line. One of the cooler heads insisted that no sixth grade graduate like me could ever hope to penetrate the erudite literary fastnesses of the Line. "You belong with the boys in the back room," he explained, "among those tough fellows in the Wake of the News." Say it isn't so, Charlie! Jack Thorne.

THE LIVER RALLIES UNDER GOOD CARE.

It is now a matter of general knowledge that we may have liver failure just as we may have cardiac or kidney deficiency. In other words, a decrease in the efficiency of this structure following injury is as inevitable as a diminution in the strength of the heart after damage to its muscle.

Curiously enough, however, it has been shown that the liver has—to a very remarkable degree—the capacity to regenerate. We know that the "pump" possesses the same power, although it is accomplished in a different manner—by thickening of the muscular wall. When liver cells are destroyed, the same type may be replaced—at a very rapid rate—through the heavy feeding of carbohydrates. In fact, three or more ounces of tissue may be rebuilt within the course of twenty-four hours. This new material carries on in an entirely satisfactory manner.

The liver is capable of standing so much abuse that it rarely advises its owner that anything is wrong until it has practically exhausted its ability to recover. There are few incipient symptoms of weakness and there is no accurate test for measuring its function. This is in sharp contrast to the methods which we are able to apply in determining the performance of the kidneys. Only now and then can early impairment of the liver be discovered.

Naturally, if deterioration continues for any great length of time, restoration will be retarded and areas broken down by disease will be replaced by scar tissue, which may be likened to the putty with which the painter covers cracks and nail holes; it is a "filler" and plays no active part. This condition is known as cirrhosis.

From recent investigations have come a few important observations which, if heeded, may reduce the incidence of wear and tear and greatly prolong life.

First, liver cells must be safeguarded against degeneration through the avoidance of noxious substances known to be harmful. Among such irritants are bacterial toxins and certain metallic and organic poisons, such as cinchophen, chloroform, arsenic, and phosphorus.

Second, the liver must be regarded as a link in the chain of organs that are closely related—such as the heart, the kidneys, the pancreas, and the spleen—and when one is affected the others may suffer, also.

Third, liver overload may occur after heavy meals, as practically all the food material from the digestive tract entering the blood must pass through this huge chemical laboratory. For this reason—when the structure is suspected—five or six lights meals should be the rule rather than the regulation three.

Fourth, liver cells are protected and are stimulated to re-form in the presence of an adequate supply of carbohydrates. These may be administered effectively as a part of the regular diet. Orange juice sweetened with glucose, corn sirup, or sugar of milk may be used several times daily. There is, also, some evidence that vitamin B may play a rôle in the reëstablishment of proper function of this organ. It should always be provided in ample amounts where trouble is thought to exist.

Although no spectacular advance has been made in the clinical recognition of the beginning signs, we may hope for more exact procedures in the diagnostic field within the next few years. Medical science has made great progress in understanding liver disease, in devising means of prevention, and in perfecting a rational plan of management.

X-RAY NOT ENOUGH.

Mrs. M. writes: Is it always necessary to give a cystoscopic examination in order to diagnose a urinary tract condition? Would not X-rays of the kidneys and bladder be sufficient?

REPLY.

By means of the cystoscope the physician can see the parts of the bladder, tumors if they are present, and judge as to the condition of the tissues. X-ray films show only stones or changes in size, shape, or position.

FLUTTERING EYELIDS.

H. M. T. writes: What causes a fluttering sensation in the eyelid? Can anything be done about it?

REPLY.

Some abnormal stimulation of the muscles in the lid. This condition [tic] is usually worse when one is fatigued or nervous. At times some form of infection about the teeth or tonsils may be responsible. As a rule, no significance need be attached to the incident. It means merely that you need more rest.

PNEUMOTHORAX.

W. R. writes: How is pneumothorax given?

REPLY.

Air is introduced into the pleural space, thus permitting the lung to collapse or contract. Where the tuberculous infection is confined to one lung the procedure has given excellent results. The treatment should be continued over a period of two to four years, depending upon the extent and the severity of the trouble.

MENTAL CASES.

G. S. writes: What kind of examination is given a suspected mental case?

REPLY.

Mental illness is determined by one's reactions to his environment; the ability to answer sensibly certain ordinary questions and to interpret properly his surroundings. A complete examination may require several hours and cover many phases of the patient's experiences.

POSSIBLY NEURITIS.

A. M. B. writes: What is the cause of a woman of 60 losing the power of the fingers of both hands? In addition, there is a heavy pain in the right arm and shoulder and a stiffness of the neck from behind the left ear down.

REPLY.

Possibly a form of neuritis, cervical rib, or pressure on the brachial plexus. A careful diagnostic study is in order.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—The earthquake disaster of Jan. 24 last and a succession of tremors which followed in its wake increased the ranks of Chilean believers in the solectric theory of predicting this class of natural disaster. The numbers increased so much that Julio Bustos Navarrete, director of the national Saito observatory, considered it advisable to warn quake scared Chileans of the snares of this theory.

The true purpose of scientific institutions, he pointed out in a bulletin, is to examine impartially the different theories put forward to account for natural phenomena, since free discussion for and against is of value for the determination of the truth. In respect to the Cooper theory [named for an English mercantile captain], the facts have proved to be unfavorable to that theory, he says.

Science, he declares, admits, but with reserve, that the different positions of the planets have some influence on solar activity in virtue of certain special conditions of unstable equilibrium within the body of the sun.

"The planets do not circle round the sun but around the common center of gravity of the planetary system," his bulletin says. "As the position of this center is constantly varying, as the solar contraction is more or less intense, solar activity varies in consequence."

In this way, according to Chile's No. 1 seismologist, the planets exercise indirect action on the earth, but not a direct action, as the Cooper theory presumes. In the influence of planetary conjunctions on a determined point on the earth, according to this theory, it is necessary that the planets should be in certain critical angles of 57 and 88 degrees.

Capt. Cooper tried to demonstrate this in the Atacama earthquake of Nov. 10, 1922. Ismael Gajardo Reyes, then director of the astronomical observatory of the University of Chile, contradicted him. The director said the planets indicated by Cooper in a diagram were not in those positions on the day of the quake.

Among the predictions based on the Cooper theory was the announcement of the great Valparaiso earthquake of Aug. 16, 1906, made by Capt. Arturo Middleton. The following was the text of that announcement:

"Republic of Chile [navy department].—Prediction of atmospheric phenomena: The meteorological section of the coastwise territory has prognosticated atmospheric and seismic phenomena for the sixteenth of the present month, based on the following observations: On the day stated there will be conjunctions of Neptune with the moon and maximum declination toward the east. By reason of this situation of the stars the circumference of the perilous circle will pass through Valparaiso and the critical point formed with the sun falls in close proximity to the port.—[Signed] Arturo Middleton, Valparaiso, Aug. 6, 1906."

Such an astonishing coincidence did not fail to attract the attention of the scientific world, and the prediction caused a sensation. It was decided to await or submit a further test to the Cooper theory.

The opportunity soon occurred. Capt. Middleton predicted disturbances for Sept. 12, 1906, but the prediction failed. Then Capt. Cooper himself made a prediction for Sept. 29, 1912. This also failed.

These facts proved the inadequacy of the theory. The public, through what Navarrete terms a phenomenon of collective suggestion, paid attention only to isolated successes in predictions, forgetting the long series of failures.

Capt. Middleton himself in a letter addressed to Count Fernando Montessus de Ballore, director of the seismological observatory, recognized the inadequacy and lack of scientific basis of the Cooper theory.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Chicago, April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1930 I sold two friends a chattel for which I took a down payment and a chattel mortgage which was and is duly recorded. The mortgage reads that they are to pay a certain sum monthly until paid up. They made these monthly payments until the depression made further payment impossible, so I asked them to pay something each month to show good faith, which they have done.

1. Must I have a new contract drawn?
2. How long is a recorded chattel mortgage good?
3. Is it good as long as they pay the small amount monthly?
4. As the contract provides that I can take either peaceable or forcible possession if I desire after nonpayment, is it advisable to take peaceable possession?

A. D. J.

1. The mortgage lien has expired as far as possible third parties are concerned, but the written promise to pay the money remains binding as between the original debtor and creditor until ten years from the maturity date.
2. Three years with the privilege of a one year extension.
3. See 1 and 2.
4. Offhand we would say yes, but obviously we do not have all of the facts before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ADMINISTRATOR'S BOND.

Waukegan, Ill., April 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My aunt, a resident of Illinois, died leaving no will. There are four heirs, the children of a brother, three of whom live in Wisconsin. If all heirs sign consent to the Illinois resident heir administering the estate [1] is a bond necessary? If the one who handles the estate signs an administrator's bond and an unrelated property owner signs, what are [2] his duties and privileges?

3. What should such a bond for $5,000 cost?
4. What is the lawful fee for an administrator for the lawyer?
5. Do the contents of her safety deposit box have to go to the attorney general at Springfield before the contents are delivered to the administrator?

A. T.

1. Some probate judges would not insist on a bond where the heirs were willing to sign, and others would insist on bond. Take the matter up with the court in question.
2. We assume that you mean the bondsman. He undertakes to make good if the administrator defaults. He has substantially no other duties or privileges.
3. To find what a surety company would charge take the matter up with a broker.
4. The statute says not over 6 per cent of the personal property, and in our opinion this should cover both fees.
5. No, but there should be an inheritance tax examination of the contents of the box.

A DEFENSE LAWYER ON THE JUVENILE COURT.

Chicago, April 6.—Your editorial comment this morning on the deplorable situation at the Juvenile court is but a drop in the bucket as compared to what harm the attitude of the court, probation officers, and detention house has caused to those unfortunate young people who happen to come under its supervision.

The probation officers in the first place are the worst offenders. They invariably are busybodies who do not try to aid, but their attitude reflects sharply on the minds of the youngsters.

Nothing further need be said about the judge.

The youngsters are placed in a jail which is ten times worse than the Bridewell, and no segregation is practiced to separate the novices from hardened repeaters.

If an attorney represents any person before the court the probation officers immediately deal with him as if he were an interloper. SAMUEL YOELIN.

THE TARIF.

Theodore, Ala., March 28.—Amid much speculation concerning candidates and issues in 1940, I submit a prediction that no other issue will influence more votes than that of the time honored basis of difference between the two old parties—the tarif. From Puget Sound to Key West and from Eastport, Maine, to San Diego, agricultural producers and manufacturers are complaining that they have been "sold down the river" through trade agreements negotiated by Secretary Hull, whose theory seems to be that the best way to get a market is first to give up your own. "America First" may sound selfish but it is a pretty good slogan in a selfish world.

A. W. PRESCOTT.

NURSES IN SMALL TOWNS.

Deerfield, Ill., April 2.—Are there any country doctors who would welcome a registered nurse into the community? Chicago is full of nurses who are willing to go to such communities if they were sure they could support themselves. Especially is this true of widowed nurses with one or two small children.

Such a nurse could go out on obstetrical cases, get everything ready, watch the patient, calling the doctor when the time came. She could give visiting nurse care to bedridden people and sick children; could help the doctor in the office.

Since living expenses are less in the small town she would be able to give her own small ones a better sort of life and more personal attention. NURSE.

ON RUN 249.

Chicago, April 5.—Yesterday evening I was a passenger on a southbound Racine avenue car, run No. 249. As the car stopped at 31st street a blind passenger asked the motorman if this was 31st street. The motorman courteously advised that it was, asked the passenger to wait, alighted from the car and assisted the blind man from the car and further assisted him across the street to a waiting westbound 31st street car.

The conductor on this car also was very courteous to a blind passenger on the back platform, and when he reached his destination the conductor offered his assistance. However, it was not needed as the gentleman fortunately had a seeing eye dog. R. C. W.

THE ALIMONY RACKET.

Chicago, April 7.—Won't you continue your campaign against alimony? It comes from trial without a jury and results in prison for debt. It is an atrocious throwback to the judicial system of the middle ages, from which we thought we had emerged. WIDOW.

THE SWASTIKA.

Chicago, April 6.—Good heavens, is there actually some one endowed with a certain degree of literacy in our own metropolitan Chicago who believes that the swastika is a Nazi-conceived symbol? I would not have believed this appalling fact if I hadn't seen it in print in this column April 5.

The swastika is not only an Indian symbol, as the editor pointed out, it has been the Chinese symbol of longevity for centuries, used often in Chinese art. The ancient Alaskan Indians used it, as did the Greeks many centuries before Christ. The swastika was also known to the Hindus centuries ago.

And inasmuch as Indian Boundary fieldhouse embodies a certain charm of American Indian symbolism, it is only fitting and proper to include the swastika which for years has been accepted by the American people as an American Indian sign. To leave the swastika out of Indian work is to leave the American eagle out of the seal of the United States. Incidentally, the American Indian swastika points in a different direction from that of the Nazis, which is a most significant fact. NORTHSIDER.

SAVING THE ELMS.

Chicago, April 5.—I have naturally read with interest your two recent editorials "The Elm in Danger" and "Tree Growing in the West."

In the treatment of this disease [the elm wilt and Dutch elm disease] advice may be had from the chief plant pathologist, department of agriculture, Glen Ellyn, Ill., or Urbana, Ill.

As you so ably pointed out, it is of the greatest importance that these diseases be stopped before they reach our city to a serious degree. Any one discovering this evidence to the destruction of an elm will find the Illinois departm nt of agriculture [and there is none better] most willing to help.

When there is evidence, send a sample of wood in to the department of agriculture. DONAL C. HICKS.

WHO WILL PAY TO REPAIR ROADS?

Chicago, April 6.—Acting Governor Stelle and Mayor Kelly are advocating a bond or note issue of $100,000,000 for roads, the money to be paid back out of part of the motor fuel tax, so there will be no extra taxes. They neglect to say that that money is now being used for repairs and maintenance and if taken away taxes must be assessed for that work, probably by adding another cent to the gas tax. THE FAMILY ALBUM.

Columbia City, Ind., April 4.—We are so glad you are printing the Gaar Williams cartoons. We are saving them and will be glad to have the collection for our library. We bought one "Family Album" when it was put out in book form and wanted another, but the supply was exhausted.

STATE MILK RULE VIEWED AS PERIL TO DRIVERS' JOBS

Further Layoffs Feared if Price Is Boosted.

The following article is the last of a series on the milk industry and milk prices in relation to the proposal for a state control board.

BY HAL FOUST.

Jerry Greene, lean and agile despite his 42 years, hopped from his milk delivery truck in an alley in back of Lake View avenue.

"Conditions in this business have been changing for the worse fast," he said, filling a metal basket with glass bottles from a wooden case. "A lot of us drivers have been laid off, and no one knows who will be next."

Greene is one of the 4,900 men who begin trotting up and down stairways long before most of the city is awake. Ten years ago there were 7,500 of them, and they carried 1,150,000 bottles a day to kitchen doors. Now they are having trouble selling 810,000 quarts a day for home delivery.

Admits Consumer's Point.

"You can't argue much with a customer who says she has to cut her order so she'll have enough money to pay the bill," he continued. "Of course, in this neighborhood prices aren't as important as on other routes."

"There's another customer gone," said Greene, returning from a trip into an apartment building. "The cook said she was buying from her grocery, where the price is 2 cents less than the 12 cents we have to charge."

The truck rolled quietly into another alley.

Greene talks with his customers, especially those who cut their orders. He probably knows as much about the peculiarities of the Chicago milk market as the economists hired by his employers.

He has noticed that beer is being delivered at some of the homes no longer taking as much milk as they once did. He hears housewives say they are using canned or powdered milk for cooking or that they are using cream from the tops of their milk bottles. In an independent survey he found that there were fewer babies on his route than there were ten years ago.

"Everybody is skimping on expenses," he summarized. "There is no doubt that price is a factor in the volume of liquid milk we can sell."

How Distributors Lose.

Economists who have surveyed Chicago's milk industry estimate that Greene is getting 4.6 to 5 cents of the 12 cents paid by the consumer for a quart of milk. They fix the total delivery cost for the quart at 6 cents. The milk cost 3.75 cents [the amount paid the farmer] when it entered the pasteurizing and bottling plant of the distributor. The processing increased this cost to 6.25 cents. With the 6 cent delivery cost added, economists fix the total cost of each quart at the doorstep at 12.25 cents.

Thus the distributors estimate that they lose money on each bottle sold at 12 cents, a loss that is not compensated entirely by the sale of their other products, such as cream, butter, cheese, and buttermilk.

What It Boils Down To.

With the 12 cent doorstep price prevailing, college professors, farmers, union labor men, and distributors interviewed in this series have agreed that consumption is being curtailed in Chicago [to 0.6 of a pint a person] with these results: Farmers are losing money due to their large surplus of milk which is sold cheaply for manufacturing, distributors are reporting losses to their stockholders, and union labor is losing jobs.

The farmers interviewed believe that union drivers, such as Greene, should accept a wage cut so consumers might buy more milk at a reduced price. [The drivers average $51 a week, including commissions over the basic pay of $48.]

Other Illinois farmers are backing the state price fixing bills now pending in the legislature at Springfield. But similar laws in eastern cities have increased the price of milk to consumers.

Any increase in the retail price, as might be expected under a state control board, probably would result in a further reduction in consumption in the Chicago area, thus aggravating the troubles of farmers, distributors, and drivers and adding to the pinch on housewives' budgets.

MRS. BOEVE DIES IN HOLLAND.

LAURA INGALLS.

New York, April 9.—(AP)—Laura Ingalls, women's non-stop trans-continental flight record holder, announced today she soon would attempt a 5,000 mile flight in an effort to break the nonstop solo distance record.

"The takeoff on the distance attempt will be from some point in the middle west," Miss Ingalls said just before leaving Roosevelt field in her new transport plane on a test flight to California.

The men's solo non-stop distance record was set by the late Wiley Post at 3,942 miles in a New York-Berlin hop.

SEEK INDICTMENT OF 4 ST. CHARLES ESCAPEES TODAY

State's Attorney Charles A. O'Connor of Kane county will seek indictments today against the four latest escapees from the St. Charles Training School for Boys. At the same time a legislative committee investigating the school will meet in Springfield to consider bills to stop easy escapes from the institution.

Three of the boys whose cases are to be heard by the Kane county grand jury stole a car and fled to Chicago Thursday night. They are Talbert Jennings, Sylvester Taylor, and Hobart Lambert. The fourth was caught as he attempted to steal the automobile of Mayor I. G. Langum of St. Charles. He is Anthony Guidry of Chicago.

"It cannot be expected that a nonpenal institution can hold this criminal type of boy by the ear," Mayor Langum wrote yesterday to A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare. "It is far from right for the state to allow this type to be tried as a penal case and then be dumped upon this countryside without something to curtail their intent—which is to prey upon others."

Mayor Langum said the school should be used as originally intended—for dependent and delinquent boys who have not shown a fondness for felonies.

Pose as Worshipers, Then Try to Open Church Safe

Between Easter services yesterday burglars tried to break open a safe in the basement of St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church, 6458 South Peoria street. The safe contained $100. Police believe the yeggs attended the morning services, pretending to be worshipers, and then hid themselves in the building. They removed the safe combination dial and hinges, but were unable to open it.

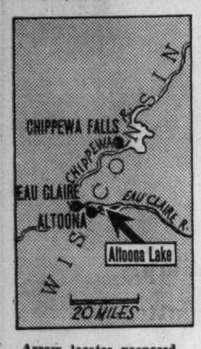
WISCONSIN WPA DAM SECRET IS OUT OF THE BAG

Court Suit Reveals Failure to Acquire Land Rights.

Eau Claire, Wis., April 9.—[Special.]—Residents of Eau Claire and Altoona, a railroad town three miles east of here, have been watching the Eau Claire river flow through the open flood gates of a new $162,000 WPA dam two miles east of Eau Claire and wondering when the gates were to be closed. The purpose of the dam is to make a lake five miles long and a mile wide, but there will be no lake until the floodgates are closed.



Arrow locates proposed Altoona lake.

Watching construction of the dam from November, 1937, until it was finished last January, residents of both towns looked forward to a pleasant summer of boating, bathing, and fishing in the waters of Lake Altoona, as the proposed backwater has been named.

Fail to Acquire Rights.

Now the secret of the open gates and unchecked river is out. Mrs. Marie McFaul, who owns a 113 acre farm along the Eau Claire river, has filed suit in the Eau Claire County court to restrain county commissioners from raising the level of the river and flooding 50 acres of her land.

What is more, rights to flood ten other farms have not been obtained.

Investors who bought what they were told would be lake front lots are wondering how soon the lake will reach their lots. It's an eighth of a mile away now.

But these investors are no worse off than the town of Altoona. Mayor Fred S. Gloede bought a stretch of land from the North Western railroad to build a municipal bathing beach, but unless the dam is put into use the site will be good only for dry land sports because it is even farther from the water.

WPA Grants $137,000.

Seventeen months ago, when looking about for a WPA project on which to obtain federal easy money, county commissioners decided to make the river in the vicinity of Altoona a pleasure spot.

For an appropriation of $25,000, the county obtained a federal grant of $137,000. Work was started in the fall because plenty of WPA labor was available. Work continued for fourteen months, with countless delays.

Where to place the blame for neglect to obtain flowage rights is puzzling county commissioners. W. S. Kelley, board chairman, appointed a committee two years ago to arrange for the flooding and it was assumed all rights had been obtained long before the project was submitted to the WPA for approval. Apparently the WPA made no further inquiry.

Old Plat Backs City's Claim.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., April 9.—[Special.]—Prospects of this city getting some measure of benefit from its new $50,000 Riverside park appeared brighter today. Title to the property, which has been improved with WPA money, has been claimed by the Milwaukee railroad.

Today City Attorney J. P. Evans exhibited a 1903 blueprint of property owned by the Milwaukee road in Prairie du Chein. The disputed park site is not shown on the print.

"If the railroad did acquire the land," Evans said, "no record of its transfer ever was made with the registrar of deeds in Crawford county."

DRIVES CAR INTO SPEEDING TRAIN; ESCAPES UNHURT

But Barber's $21 Auto Is a Total Loss.

Troy Dill, a Highland Park barber, recently bought an old automobile for $21. Last night he drove it in Half Day road, just west of Lake Forest.

He crossed Waukegan road without stopping, according to witnesses, and tried to cross the Milwaukee railroad tracks which run beside the Waukegan road. A speeding suburban train blocked his path. Dill, who lives at 21 North 2d street, Highland Park, crashed into the last car. He wasn't hurt but his $21 automobile was wrecked.

Crash Paralyzes Policeman.

County Highway Policeman Anthony Kirincic, 32 years old, was critically injured yesterday when his squad car was struck by another automobile at 95th street and Ridgeland avenue. Kirincic was pinned in the car which overturned. His companion, Policeman John Byrne, was uninjured. Byrne said they were driving east in 95th street, a through street. At the intersection an automobile driven by John Wirtes of Gary plowed into the side of the squad car. Kirincic was taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital paralyzed below the waist.

Killed on Way to Church.

Charles Castonguay Jr., 25, 11318 Homewood avenue, was killed when his car struck a bridge culvert over Stony creek at 127th street in Worth township. John C. Lonegon, 11536 Church street, his companion, was slightly hurt. They were on their way to Easter morning church services in Blue Island.

A man identified by a card he carried as Roy Anderson, 35 years old, of Rural Route No. 2, Bensenville, was killed early today when he drove his automobile into the side of a moving freight train on the Indiana Harbor Belt railway at 22d street, Broadview. Police said the crossing is protected by signals.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 243 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 189 were killed in Chicago where 4,968 were injured in the same period.

Chilly Easter Glorifies Hats, but Furs Conceal the Dresses

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

If the sun on Eastern morn had been a little less capricious, a little less temperamental, Chicago's Easter parade of 1939 would have been the gayest, most sentimental, most enchanting one of many years, for the dictator, Dame Fashion, had decreed that a smartly dressed woman this spring should be all of those things. His Majesty, the Sun, decided otherwise, however, so the only part of a woman's costume yesterday that could be seen was her hat. The rest of her had to be swathed in winter wraps and furs.

Some brave—or perhaps they were only foolish—women went so far as to let spring into their footgear, as well as into their hats and hearts, and they went tripping along in the parade in toeless, heelless shoes, but they looked cold. In fact, the only paraders who didn't look chilled were those who had on fur coats or jackets.

Flowers and Accessories of White Predominate.

It definitly was a white Easter. Not the ground, although gray clouds in midmorning looked as if they might sprinkle snow onto the paraders at any moment, but flowers and accessories were of virginal white. Not all, of course, for there were some in pastel and others in brilliant colors, but white predominated. And, strange to say, the white flowers on shoulders were not mostly gardenias; the imagination displayed in Easter corsages made them exciting adjuncts to costumes.

Hats were not so wild as early spring fashions had indicated they would be. Or perhaps it was because one has become accustomed to the fantastic things that go under the classification of millinery this season. Veils were everything, floating behind, flying ahead, tied into huge bows that looked like kites, or hanging meekly down in back as if they were braids of hair.

Tiny Hats of Flowers Matched by Bouquets.

Tiny hats of flowers were worn by many of the well dressed women. Usually a little round bouquet of the same flowers—real ones, though—was worn by the woman who had a tiny flower garden perched above one eye. Not all hats were small, however, for some were huge, more like garden hats than churchgoing bonnets on a cool spring Sunday.

Little girls were not the only ones in little girl coats, for some of their mammas were wearing new spring coats with pinched-in waists and flaring skirts, just the sort that little girls have worn for years. The big "little girls" were shivering, too, unless they had fur scarves or capes for extra warmth. Children, as a rule, did not have on new Easter outfits, for wise mothers had picked leggings or ski pants and winter bonnets or ear-muffs as more appropriate to the day than light reefers and straw hats.

Camel's Hair Coats Worn by Masculine Paraders.

If every camel's hair coat or even every third one of them, represented the hair from a camel, there would be a lot of hairless camels in the Sahara desert this season, for many masculine paraders, large and small, wore what are called camel's hair coats yesterday. Many silver foxes had been raised and skinned to provide warmth for feminine promenaders, too, so many, in fact, that it is hard to realize that a silver fox pelt doesn't come as a prize in a 5 cent package of candy.

The traffic jam in North Michigan avenue was worse than ever; cars moved at a snail's pace down the local drive from Lincoln park to Chicago avenue around the time when the Fourth Presbyterian church services were over. From all the near north side churches worshipers drifted toward the drive, some to end their walks at the Casino, where members and guests enjoyed a gala luncheon and musical, and others to wend their way into the Drake, where an Easter bonnet breakfast for the benefit of the Salvation Army was being given.

The Goodman Sisters Smartly Attired.

There were no smarter promenaders than the Goodman sisters, Miss Kay and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr. They represented the two extremes of good taste in this season's styles. Miss Goodman was trim and tailored; her elder sister was alluringly feminine. The former wore a simple, warm looking black cloth coat and a small white straw sailor trimmed with two black ciré roses. Her corsage was a tailored one of red, white, and blue. Mrs. Dewey's French blue and white printed silk frock was covered with an American beauty full-length wool coat. For warmth she wore a blue fox jacket. Her hat, also of the sailor type, was of French blue, with the brim lined with American Beauty. The sisters were escorted to St. Chrysostom's by a very young man, Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Dewey, who was smartly turned out in tweeds.

Two other youthful worshipers at St. Chrysostom's were Jeanette and Daphne Hersey, who were with their mother, Mrs. L. Edward Hart Jr., and Mr. Hart. Jeanette wore her first suit, a blue tweed, and Daphne was wearing a brown and white shepherd's plaid. Both wore natural straw bonnets. Their mother was lovely in a navy blue coat and a hat of flowers with a corsage to match. Sables were wrapped around her neck.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker's Hat Perfect for Ensemble.

"My husband does not think my hat is gay enough," said Mrs. Arthur Meeker when some one complimented her upon her appearance. It was a lovely hat, however, of black straw trimmed with valley lilies—becoming to her softly waved white hair, and a perfect hat with a black and white print dress and a silver fox cape. Mr. Meeker was a picture of what the well dressed man should wear in morning clothes, maroon carnation, gay cravat, and top hat. They were among the one hundred or more who lunched at the Casino.

The Leander McCormicks and Sir Anthony Lindsay Hogg were others who entered the Casino around 1:30. Being French, Mrs. McCormick sponsors the very short skirt, of course, and yesterday she was wearing a full skirted black sheer crêpe under a Fragment.

Two men were sitting at a table in Rickett's restaurant on Chicago avenue the other day, and across the room a woman and a small boy sat at another table. One of the men suddenly began to sing a lullaby in a pleasing, tender voice. The little boy turned around with a startled glance. When the man had finished the song, he walked over to the table where the man sat watching him and kissed him on the cheek, without speaking. Then he walked back and joined the woman, obviously his mother, and they left the restaurant.

In the Morning Mail.

Until one of my family brought home the record I had been gayly tum-tuming the tune and ending strong on "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." I found they had been secretly amused at my acceptance of the double entendre as a simple, innocent ballad. So I told them the story of their great-grandmother, who in like circumstances suddenly stopped singing "Everybody Has a Jag On but Me" and said to her oldest son, "Helmar, what is a jag on, anyway?" The gray squirrel resident of Garland court, the block long street that runs alongside the public library, is back again. Undaunted by the clanging street cars and the clamor of urban life, he has returned to his last autumn's haunts. Demure White Easter Bonnet Wins First Prize

Mrs. Frank Bering's hat, demure in coloring but dashing as to line, of white woven straw with a black band and white veiling edged with black organza, was the first prize winner at the Easter bonnet breakfast given yesterday by the woman's division of the Salvation Army at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Frank Lagorio was awarded second prize for a becoming flat beret of powder blue, veiled in blue with maroon chenille dots.

Dr. and Mrs. Lagorio's lovely young daughter, Carlotta, won first prize in the corsage competition with a circle of purple hyacinths around a center of valley lily sprays. t was her fiancé, John T. Landreth, who had provided the corsage, of course. Mitchell D. Follansbee, one of the guests in the party of Mrs. William S. Monroe, president of the woman's division of the army, was judged the best dressed man, with Harry Winston II. as runner-up.

Another of Mrs. Monroe's guests, Mrs. Theodore A. Shaw, was sixth in the Easter bonnet contest, in a black sailor with a high crown and trimming of white lilacs. Third prize was given to Mrs. Lloyd Partridge, who wore a rose felt sailor with a lue ribbon band and veil; fourth to Mrs. Alfred Ettelson in a black straw sailor with a single china rose on a long stem, and fifth to Mrs. J. Frank Newman, who wore a flower hat of lilacs.

In the children's class Anna Marie Kiessling won first prize for the girls in an outfit made by her mother, Mrs. Christian G. Kiessling. Anna Marie wore a Scotch plaid cap, skirt, and jacket, and carried a doll dressed exactly the same. Rowe Gingrich was the winner in the boys' class.

Phoebe Massey Is Engaged to G. W. Ryerson

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE rambling lake front Winnetka home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson will be the setting for a fifth family wedding late in June when, probably on the 24th of that month, the Johnsons' granddaughter, Miss Phoebe Massey, becomes the bride of George Wickersham Ryerson. The engagement of Miss Massey to Mr. Ryerson was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bragg Massey, at an informal tea yesterday.

The tea was given in the Massey home, next door to Mrs. Massey's girlhood home, which now is occupied by her sister and brother-in-law, the Ayres Boals. The former Dorothea Johnson and Mr. Massey were married in the old house and so were the Boals, and Miss Massey was born in it. The last family wedding was that of Miss Henrietta Boal to Philip Wyatt Moore Jr. last fall. Then, however, the wedding guests did not have to come in a special railroad car as they did to the Massey-Johnson wedding in 1905 when there were few motors and the roads from Chicago were unpaved.

Wedding to Unite Two Old Chicago Families.

The Ryerson-Massey wedding will unite two old Chicago families. Miss Massey's great-grandparents, Gen. and Mrs. Hart L. Stewart, came here 100 years ago from New York, taking five weeks for the trip.

Mr. Ryerson, son of Mrs. John Albert Ryerson and the late Mr. Ryerson of Evanston, is a grandson of the late Rev. Dr. James Samuel Stone, rector for many years of St. James' Episcopal church. His paternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson Ryerson of New York, and his uncle and aunt are Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Warner Ryerson of Chicago. Mrs. Edwin Ryerson is one of the most active members of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital.

Miss Massey, a graduate of Miss Porter's school at Farmington, Conn., attended the North Shore Country Day school, and was presented to society two winters ago. She is a member of the Chicago Junior league and of the Service club. Her first American ancestor was Geoffrey Massey, who came to Salem, Mass., in 1629.

Mr. Ryerson attended the Chicago Latin school and was graduated from Yale in 1931. As a member of the college orchestra, the Yale Serenaders, he made two trips to Europe. He is engaged in business in Chicago.

Miss Massey's brother, George B. Massey Jr., and his wife undoubtedly will come from Mexico City for the wedding, which will be an outdoor one, weather permitting. Another brother, Loren J. Massey, makes his home with his parents.

Barbara Baker to Wed Hunter Nicol April 29.

Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Miss Barbara Baker, daughter of Mrs. Kirkman Baker of Evanston, and Hunter Nicol, son of Mr. and Mrs. Killian V. R. Nicol of Chicago, on April 29. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening in St. Mark's Episcopal church, Evanston, the Rev. Harold L. Bowen officiating. There will be no reception following, but the bridal party and a few close friends will return to the Baker home to drink a toast to the bride and bridegroom.

Miss Baker's only attendant will be her sister, Miss Virginia Baker. Ernest Palmer Jr., a student at Northwestern university law school, will be the best man. His parents, the senior

Good Morning!

You won't like this un as well as you did "The Arkansas Traveler."

They've speeded Bob Burns up too much. He just doesn't click as the director of a bank and seems thoroughly not at home in several of the story's situations.

However, some of his dialog is amusing and the manner in which he puts over a mule deal in England, thereby saving his county in Missouri from bankruptcy, delighted the audience of which I was one. . . .

The action starts in Missouri, where you meet Bob and his socially ambitious wife. . . . The story transports them to England, where they have peculiar experiences with a peculiar sort of English aristocracy. Then, back home they come, happier—and far wiser—Yankees than when they'd gone away. . . .

Mr. Burns is always likable. Grace George, lovely to look at, carries off an ill fitting rôle with an air. Other players are conscientious and capable.

The picture is effectively staged and costumed. But for a' that and a' that it succeeds in being merely moderately entertaining.

See you tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father turned Craddock House into flats and installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepared to take a trip, despite an order from Ross to vacate her flat because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Grey. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. Lucy gives her cousin, Lee Fenton, permission to use her flat while she is away. Lee is in love with Peter. Rush, the porter, mutters belligerently to Lee against Ross. Mrs. Green, the charwoman, says she is ill and asks Lee for a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a night club where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night in his flat. Later he is again awakened and sees Mavis again coming from Ross' flat. She says she went to retrieve her purse. Lee awakens from a nightmare to find herself covered with blood. Her bloody footprints lead from Ross' door. Lee knows she walks in her sleep. In terror she washes away the blood stains and goes to tell Peter. Ross' valet arrives and finds Ross has been shot and killed. An old maid tenant tells how she saw Mavis coming from Ross' flat twice. Rush turns over to the police a cigaret case he found belonging to Bobby Foster. Lucy, who didn't go away after all, admits coming to Craddock House after 2 a. m. and seeing a figure hurrying out the door and going up to find Ross murdered. She fled after finding Mavis' compact. Lucy tells that Ross was married years before to an actress, that he was never divorced, and had lately stopped paying her. Bobby Foster disappears and he is charged with the murder. Mavis also disappears. Ross' ex-wife is found in Birmingham and she has an alibi for the time of the murder. Bobby Foster calls Peter and begs for a loan. Peter persuades him to give himself up.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

AN AGITATED CALLER.

The inspector broke the pause which followed Peter's long speech.

"First of all," he said, "Miss Craddock's statement is uncorroborated. Secondly, Mr. Foster's statement is uncorroborated. She says she was there at two-fifteen. He says he was there at two-thirty. They've both got very strong motives for mentioning those particular times, Miss Craddock because she clears her niece, and Mr. Foster because he clears himself."

"Bobby Foster didn't know about Miss Craddock's statement. He didn't know that the time he mentioned would clear him."

"It was in the papers," said the inspector.

Peter made an impatient gesture.

"I tell you he didn't know it! Good lord, man, you've seen him! He couldn't act to deceive a child—you must see that."

"That's as may be. Then there's another thing. You say Mr. Craddock couldn't have left the front door open when he came in with Miss Grey. But Miss Craddock found it open at a quarter past two. She says she saw some one come down the steps. Well, our theory is that this some one was Mr. Foster. You say it couldn't have been, because Mr. Foster hadn't got a key and how did he get in? Well, who had got a key? We've communicated with the other tenants. They are all in the places where they are supposed to be, and they've all got their keys with them—I'm talking about the street door keys. Do you see where that leaves us?

"If Mr. Craddock didn't leave that door open himself, then some one inside the house came down and opened it—and who would be so likely to let Mr. Foster in as Miss Mavis Grey?"

"He didn't know she was there, man! But look here, talking about keys, did Rush tell you that one of the keys of Ross' flat went missing about ten days ago? He sticks to it that some one pinched it to get at Ross' papers, and he firmly believes that this some one came back and shot Ross on Tuesday night."

The inspector moved a slow gaze to Peter's face and kept it there.

"This is the first I've heard about that, Mr. Renshaw. What does he say?"

"Says the key went missing—thinks Ross left it sticking in the door and some one pinched it—says Ross raised Cain about his papers being disturbed, and forgot himself to the extent of accusing Rush of having disturbed them."

"Yes, we got that part. The daily woman, Mrs. Green, was listening in. She made a statement about the quarrel, and Rush admitted it afterwards—very reluctantly."

Peter leaned forward.

"Did she mention the key?"

"I don't think so." He opened a drawer. "I've got her statement here, but I'm sure there wasn't anything about a key." He turned some pages and extracted a typewritten sheet. "Here we are: 'I heard it with my own ears as I was coming across the landing.' She was listening of course. An eavesdropping woman—we know her sort.

"Well, she goes on 'Mr. Craddock, he was in a proper shouting rage. He says as loud as a bull, "You've been mucking up my papers!" and Rush, he answers him back as bold as brass, "And what would I want with your papers, Mr. Ross?" Mr. Craddock says, "How do I know what you want? Blackmail, I shouldn't wonder!" and Rush says, "You did ought to be ashamed of yourself, Mr. Ross." And Craddock says, "Get to hell out of here!" and Rush come out.' Well, there's nothing about a key there, you see."

Peter said, "This is what Rush said to me. He said Ross had him in and accused him of having been at his despatch box, and he said he reminded him then about the key that he had lost, but he was past listening to reason, so Rush said he turned his back and walked out. 'And there was that sniveling hen of a Mrs. Green on the landing.' That's what he said. Now why didn't your eavesdropping Mrs. Green hear that bit about the key, or if she heard it, why didn't she pass it on? It was obviously a most important piece of evidence. Why didn't she tell you about it?"

"For the matter of that, why didn't Rush tell us? I'll have her asked the direct question, but to my mind Rush is trying to put this key story over to clear himself of suspicion about Mr. Craddock's papers."

Peter got up.

"Well, I think that's bunk. And bad psychology. Rush is a crusty old cobblestone, but he's neither a thief, a blackmailer, nor, if you're interested, a murderer. I've known him since I was 3 years old, and if it comes to taking his word against that eavesdropping wet blanket of a Mrs. Green, well, I'd do it every time."

The bell of the telephone on the desk punctuated this remark. The inspector made no attempt to answer Mr. Renshaw. He put the receiver to his ear, listened for a moment, and then said, "Put her through." A faint, shrill sound became audible. Peter, uncertain whether to go or stay, heard it like the thin ghost of a woman's voice a long way off. He thought the lady was agitated, and he thought she was in the deuce of a hurry, but he caught no words.

The inspector said, "Yes, that will be all right, I'd like you to come along here at once if you will. . . . Yes, I was wanting to see you. . . . No, we'll look after you—you needn't be frightened." There was a rustling and a squeaking on the line. The inspector gave a deep, hearty laugh. "What—in broad daylight? Nonsense! You come right along and don't worry." There were more agitated sounds from the telephone. The inspector said, "Now, now—you come right along and we'll talk about it." He hung up and looked across at Peter.

"That," he said, "was Mrs. Green, and she's scared to death."

"What's she got to be scared about?"

"She says she's got something on her mind—something she held back and didn't tell because she was afraid to. She was talking from a call box at Charing Cross and you heard me tell her to come right along."

Peter thought, "And what am I expected to say to that? You're looking at me very hard, my good lamb. I wonder what that dreep of a woman was bleating into your ear just now. And which would look more like a guilty conscience, a request to stay and meet the lady, or a simple manly disposition to mind my own business and leave you to get on with your job?" He decided on the latter course, was aware of the inspectorial eye upon him even to the door and walked down a long corridor with the feeling that it was still boring into his spine.

Peter walked back to Craddock house. It took him an hour because he sat for a while in St. James' park and thought intensively about a number of things which had been disturbing his mind for the last hour or two. One of these things was so preposterous that it gave him a sensation of giddiness whenever he contemplated it. He therefore got up, walked on, and tried to think about getting married to Lee and taking her six thousand miles away from Scotland Yard. It was a paradisal prospect, but he failed to invest it with even a semblance of reality. And once more up from the troubled waters of his mind, there bobbed the perfectly preposterous idea—fantastic and elusive as the sea serpent and as tenacious of its mythical existence.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mushrooms were prized by Roman epicures centuries ago, and they're prized by epicures of many nationalities today. Although bland in flavor and of no great dietary value, mushrooms have a happy faculty of dressing up and adding distinction to other foods, particularly to meats, chicken, soups, sauces, and gravies.

Fresh, clean looking mushrooms needn't be peeled. One need peel them only if they are badly discolored, spotty, or wilted.

No one need worry about poisonous mushrooms when buying the cultivated kind. All of these are perfectly safe, of course.

Broil or sauté them whole, or slice them from top to bottom before cooking. The stems may be separated, if you want to be fancy about it, and saved for soups, sauces, or gravy, while the caps are broiled or sautéed.

Don't overcook mushrooms or they will discolor and become tough. Young mushrooms will cook in six or eight minutes.

METHODS OF COOKING MUSHROOMS.

IN WATER: Cook whole or in slices in a very small amount of water, as liquid is drawn from the mushrooms in cooking. When just tender, season with salt, pepper, and butter, and serve. Or drain [save the liquid for soup or sauce] and add the mushrooms to a casserole dish, cream sauce, scrambled eggs, or other combination.

SAUTEED: Clean mushrooms, stem, slice, or leave whole and add to melted butter in a skillet. Three or four tablespoons of butter are enough for a pound of mushrooms. Turn frequently until lightly browned and tender, five to eight minutes. Serve with salt and pepper on toast, or add to a prepared dish.

BROILED: Usually only the largest mushrooms are broiled. They frequently accompany filet mignon and other beef steaks. Clean by wiping with a damp cloth. Dry and separate stems. Save these for soup or sauce. Brush with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and broil for two or three minutes to a side. Serve with their own juice on toast, or as a meat garnish and accompaniment.

STUFFED: Only very large mushrooms are used for stuffing. Separate stems of a pound of clean mushrooms and chop them. Brown the chopped stems with a cup of minced celery in a fourth cup butter, add cup fine dry bread crums, a little onion juice, salt, and pepper, and a sprig of parsley, minced. Place mushroom caps in buttered pan, gill side up, and fill with the stuffing. Pour the butter left in the pan over the mushrooms. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour. Remove cover and brown. Serve alone or on toast.

Kaiser, also a German exile, will speak on "Refugee Victims of the Storm."

Classically Tailored Lines

FROCK FOR WOMEN.

Classically tailored lines are a boon to the larger figure, since they flatter it as almost nothing else can. This is the type of frock one can wear almost anywhere, and the degree of dressiness it attains depends to a great extent upon the type of fabric you select and upon your accessories.

Two versions of the pattern are sketched. At the left, a rather dressy design in printed crêpe, with long sleeves, soft rolled collar on V neckline, and buttons in groups down the entire front of the model. The skirt is slightly flared and derives the rest of the comfortable fulness from deft plaiting.

The other version uses plain materials, has short sleeves and a round neckline with shirtwaist collar. Buttons are arranged in a prim, regular row. If you like, give the bodice pocket the added touch of initials. There is a pattern to help you make them. No. E-11012 available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2679 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material for the version with short sleeves.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, formerly of Evanston, now live in Springfield.

Ushering will be the bride's brother, Gordon Baker; Holland Hunter, a cousin of Mr. Nicol; Charles Gates Beckwith of Allentown, Pa., a cousin of Miss Baker, and Marshall Miller of South Haven, Mich.

Miss Baker will be given in marriage by her mother. Her grandmother, Mrs. Ella Gates Kirkman, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leach Beckwith, are coming from Allentown for the wedding. The Beckwiths will arrive on April 26, the night Mr. and Mrs. Nicol are giving a buffet supper for their future daughter-in-law. Mr. Nicol's bachelor dinner will be given the following night, and Mrs. Baker will give the wedding supper on the eve of the ceremony.

Mr. Nicol and his bride are postponing their wedding trip until later. They will make their home on a fruit farm belonging to Mr. Nicol's grandfather, James Nicol, near South Haven.

Eight members of the junior board of Northwestern university settlement will model at the annual Easter Monday card party and fashion show of the senior board today at the Woman's Club of Evanston. Many pieces of imported needlework, knitting, and sewing finished by the junior group will be on display at the party.

Mrs. Edward Tourtelot, Miss Martha Schueler, Mrs. Charles Rundell Jr., Miss Jane Hoover, Mrs. Douglas Cooper, Miss Kathryn Westerhold, Miss Christine Barnes, and Mrs. Arthur Rogers will be models. Mrs. Rundell, Mrs. Robert L. Scott Jr., Mrs. Drury Davis, Mrs. Stuart Dawson, and Miss Marie Stevenson are in charge of the needlework exhibit.

One of the gayest of yesterday's Easter parties was the luncheon Miss Betty Keith and Mrs. Michael Cudahy gave at the Shoreacres club for Miss Anne Winston and Carleton Ellis Jr., who are to be married tomorrow. Miss Winston's parents, the Farwell Winstons, are giving a family bridal dinner at home in Lake Forest tonight.

Anything Gets Into Prints for the Springtime

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Despite fashion emphasis on checks, stripes and plaids, prints hold first place in the favor of the average shopper. Effectively spaced against good, wearable background colors such as cypress green, chocolate brown, stone gray, navy, black, and deep wine red, the popular floral and whimsical designs combine to make the best of the new prints.

Such fresh, snappy combinations make the daytime dress that goes forth for any sort of a busy day from dawn till dusk, with or without a topcoat or short jacket in either harmonizing or contrasting thin wool.

More unusual prints are being unpacked—cool white strawberries, the diamonds, hearts, spades and clubs of playing cards, fat Cupids with pale pink and blue sashes floating round their middles, travel stickers in all their gaudy glory, musical instruments, golfers, horses, feathers, scribbles off a scratch pad, faces, figures, snails, birds, and mermaids, everything gets into print yardage.

All patriotic souls will like the newest prints—daytime dresses made into what are called American casuals. They are superlatively designed outfits of printed silks in lovely flattering colors—coral rose, green, chocolate, and navy. These are designed with all the flair for distinction known to American designers.

The patterns are small and are of such typical American origin as door knockers copied from the Williamsburg doors, the thirteen stars and wreaths from the colonial flags, and similar designs. The clothes are tailored with soft feminine details, plaits, tucked bosoms, gored and flared skirts, short sleeves, and interesting necklines. Modest prices are combined with a quality silk that lasts for seasons with just average care. Worn with snow white accessories these are grand all purpose daytime dresses.

Frills and Ruffles of Season Demand Perfect Freshness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Everything is frilled, ruffled, starched, or embroidered except the gas range and the bird bath," is one woman's summary of the season's return to lingerie touches.

We think that it presages a great score for beauty. Not alone because of the lingerie touch, but because of it we predict a more thoroughly scrubbed, tubbed, and groomed woman throughout. And whatever may be said for and about the superficial attributes of dress and their advantages, the true test of a beauty is exactly that exquisite freshness and cleanliness of person that the perfect lingerie touch implies.

The girl with her frills and embroideries is a lovelier person altogether than we have seen in a long day. But it's going to be work to hold to the season's standards, work to keep those frills and furbelows fresh and crisp and lovely. We argue for not adopting them at all if one does not make up her mind to wear only the fresh and crisp and lovely. Yesterday's crispness will not serve today's needs.

Again we say we like this season for the promise it holds of crisp-clean consciousness. You won't imagine a girl, all frilled and flounced beautifully, withdrawing a soiled puff from her purse or a hanky that should have gone into the laundry bag yesterday, or stockings with yesterday's mud stains on them.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Some women clap hands and break into a jig when nature endows them with a streak of gray hair. Others head for the mourners' bench. If you're in the last group a good hair crayon may lessen your anguish.

A very fine house, which specializes in treatment preparations for ailing hair, has an excellent crayon for camouflaging gray streaks. It isn't a dye, of course, and no one can make very flat statements as to how often it must be used. The best plan is to use it between shampoos as your own eye tells you it's needed.

It's entirely harmless, being made of vegetable coloring agents, and its only effect is to coat the hair shafts, not to penetrate them as a dye would. This particular stick should be moistened with water before it is drawn over the hair strands. It will not rub off and it doesn't make the hair sticky.

The women who dye their hair will find this pencil useful when the need for a touch-up becomes apparent at the scalp, as it usually does unless one is regular as clock work about visits to the beauty shop. If the hair is graying evenly, in a salt and pepper or "silver fox" effect the pencil won't be effective. Too much ground to cover. But for definite streaks or the area close to the scalp where hair shows lack of dye it's a most handy gadget to have.

This hair crayon is in six shades, black, auburn, blonde and light, medium and dark brown. The shades seemed to us quite good; it shouldn't be difficult to match crayon shade to hair color or dye tint.

Chilly Easter Glorifies Hats, Hides Dresses

short silver fox cape. Mrs. Orville Taylor, who went to the Casino from St. James' church, wore three huge white orchids on her short sable jacket and mimosa on her blue hat.

No one could have accused Mrs. Jacob Baur of not being gay enough, for with a purple suit and hat she wore a flame red scarf and the same bright color trimmed her hat, on which perched a purple butterfly. Her flowers were white carnations and valley lilies. Mrs. Townsend McKeever was with Mrs. Baur, the former wearing a long silver fox coat and a black, high crowned straw hat trimmed with white rick-rack.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne, one of the most beautiful women in the city, was wearing a mink coat and a hat of giant daisies and bachelor's buttons. Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, another stunning woman, wore ranunculus on her black cloth coat with sable trimming. Mrs. Byron S. Harvey was smart in a putty green suit with a beret to match and a mink coat for comfort. Mrs. John C. Picher's black tailored coat had a white gilet and her flowers were violets closely packed.

There was no smarter luncheon group at the Casino party than George R. Carr and his various nieces and nephews and their wives and husbands and his daughter, Mrs. Peter G. Moon. Mrs. Moon, who worshiped at St. Chrysostom's with her top hatted father and husband, was among the many women wearing mink coats. On her head was a pert and pretty little bonnet of yellowish green straw trimmed with felt flowers and tied with a lavish veil. She pinned her corsage of orange ranunculus to her purse.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins [Louise Carr] and Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Carr [Peggy Wiley], who came on from St. Chrysostom's, and Robert Carr's sister, Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell, and Mr. Sampsell were at the family table. Mrs. Sampsell carried a smart and unusual bouquet of French marigolds with her simple black coat, sable scarf, and toast colored straw sailor.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Carr, added a two skin scarf of silver foxes to a stunningly tailored coat of beige tweed. Her hat was a tiny beige straw one tied with black streamers. Mrs. Hodgkins' ensemble of yellow coat over a yellow print dress was decidedly springlike. She pinned yellow orchids to her silver fox scarf.

Mrs. Robert E. Kenyon Jr. Wears Pale Yellow.

In the same congregation was observed an outfit similar to Mrs. Hodgkins', but of paler yellow, worn by Mrs. Robert E. Kenyon Jr.

Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr. braved the chilly morning in a new brownybeige tailored suit with which she wore a doughboy's cap of matching beige contrasted with white. Also in a suit was Mrs. Thomas S. Tyler, who chose blue for her tailleur. It was made with a plaited skirt. A sprig of lilies of the valley stood gaily out from the center of Mrs. Tyler's small shoulder corsage of blue and white.

Miss Ethel Husband, hurrying to join her mother, Mrs. Robert Stevenson, wore a dashing dress of gray silk, full and plaited, under a black fox jacket. Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, arriving with Mr. Dempster, wore a fresh and pretty bunch of sweetpeas, and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, president of the Casino, wore an equally simple and becoming bouquet of pink and red carnations.

Mrs. Solomon B. Smith Attired in Dark Beige.

Mrs. Solomon B. Smith chose a dark beige wool ensemble with which she wore a brown straw jockey cap and veil, and a brilliant corsage of African daisies. Her sister, Mrs. William M. Collins Jr., was among the conservatives in mink coats, to which she pinned a tiny corsage of hyacinths, in a pale blue color. Her hat was a mustard-green straw.

Another top hat was worn by Ralph W. Applegate, whose wife, the former Julia Patterson, successfully and pictorially combined a navy blue coat with a chartreuse straw hat, flowerbedecked. Miss Sarah Hinde was warmly enough dressed for midwinter in a beige and gray suit topped off with a mink coat and more of the tiny yellow orchids. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Charles Edward Brown, whose wife is in Florida, the Albert A. Spragues, the Edmund F. Mansures and his mother, Mrs. Edmond L. Mansure; Mrs. Arthur B. Slade and Brayton Slade, Miss Remor Baumann, and Frank Nairnes, the junior Charles Y. Freemans and his mother, the senior Mrs. Freeman, were others at St. Chrysostom's.

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Receiving callers after a period of illness is sheer delight, especially when one is attired in one of the new lightweight shoulderettes. Crocheted in a fascinating cluster stitch, with finest zephyr or two ply saxony yarn, these jackets are not only dressy, but offer necessary protection to all invalids. Peach, soft yellow, pink, sea foam green or blue, this jacket may be worn also when one is comfortably ensconced in bed for an evening's reading.

For instructions in crocheting the shoulderette in cluster stitch, No. X-238, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Play Devotional Music at Only Easter Concert

BY CECIL SMITH.

Except for the untiring members of the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Great Northern theater, no single professional musician broke the calm of Easter afternoon yesterday by making a single sound in any of the city's concert halls. And even at the day's sole concert the attendance was not good. Evidently the Easter parade and the desire to feast and make merry reduced most of our musical public to a wholly corporeal level of existence.

It was an attractive program, too, that Izler Solomon and his energetic orchestra offered. Two prominent Chicago composers were represented by works of a devotional character—Dr. Albert Noelte by the cantata "Ahasverus," in which the baritone solo part was sung by Roy Schuessler; and Dr. Felix Borowski by the symphonic poem "Ecce Homo."

Dr. Noelte's deeply felt and often deeply moving cantata employs an orchestra of post-Wagnerian sonority and a contemporaneous musical style of constant modulating harmony and unexpected melodic resolution. The style is one in which I personally can no longer feel at home, being unable to shake off the conviction that this restless type of musical expression has already run its full course. Yet Dr. Noelte's score is so warm in texture and so assured in technical craft that my objection was certainly not shared by most of those in the audience. I found the setting of the text rigid in its confinement to a musical measurement that did not have much in common with the natural speech inflections of the English language. Mr. Schuessler's performance commanded great admiration for its excellence of diction and its smooth, poised flow at beautiful tone. His voice, though always audible above the orchestra, is lighter in volume than he needs to make it.

Dr. Borowski's "Ecce Homo," based on the words spoken by Pontius Pilate as he gave Christ up for crucifixion, brought an appreciative hush of silence at its mystical close. The opening and closing passages possess unusual distinction, for they succeed in creating a genuinly penitential mood even in the secular concert hall.

Mr. Solomon finished off the program with "Death and Transfiguration," the first Strauss tone poem he has conducted here. Although the performance had considerable impact and fullness of tone, the gifted young conductor has not yet entirely solved all the problems of tempo adjustment and balance between voices.

The concert began with bright, well turned versions of the overture to Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and Schumann's First symphony. Mr. Solomon and the orchestra shone to good advantage in both works.

The Housewife

Here's a practical, clever item that will make you think: "I wonder why some one didn't invent that before!" It's a hand size wooden washboard, measuring only 4¾ inches by 5¾. Use it when you launder small articles such as gloves, lingerie, socks, handkerchiefs and babies' things. A strap on the back slips over your hand and holds the washboard firm.

If you use a small enamel dishpan or if you wash out your things in the bathroom hand basin you'll find this new gadget is certainly a handy contrivance. Also, it's ideal for the woman who travels.

Record Crowds Attend Chicago Easter Worship

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Easter, the queen feast of the Christian year, found churches of all creeds crowded to the doors yesterday. Throngs at the sunrise service in Soldiers' field, at Holy Name cathedral, and at many of the city's 2,000 churches, indicated that the religious aspect of the day attracted more persons than ever before in the city's history.

Despite the Chicago Motor club's forecast that thousands would make pilgrimages to more distant sunrise services at Starved Rock and at points in Indiana and Wisconsin the seventh annual Soldiers' field service was larger by several thousand participants than last year.

Picturesque outdoor services known as Pasha were held in front of St. Michael's Greek Orthodox church, 2419 North Campbell avenue, at 11:30 a. m. The church's blessing was bestowed on the children of the parish.

Knights Templar Masons of seventeen commanderies, in full uniform as defenders of the Christian faith, paraded in Michigan avenue yesterday afternoon. They formed a living cross in front of Tribune Tower. Religious services followed in Medinah temple.

The marchers were commanded by Frank Ingram Hooper, grand commander of the order in Illinois. They were directed by Russell H. Sherwood, marshal.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, pastor of Central church, Orchestra hall, told his congregation that Easter brings life and immortality to light.

"Christianity," said Dr. Shannon, "declares that life and immortality are mighty and hope-filling realities that have been thrust into the open and brought marvelously to light by Easter."

Ground was broken yesterday afternoon for a $200,000 building for St. Bernardine's Catholic congregation, Elgin avenue and Harrison street, Forest Park. The Rev. John T. Wagener, pastor, and his assistants, the Rev. Raymond J. Wilhelm and the Rev. Kenneth J. Borchardt, conducted the ceremonies. Father Wagener said the church probably will be completed by Christmas.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Barr of Evanston yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to the Rev. J. William Zulch, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal church in Danville, Ill. Miss Barr, whose parents formerly lived in Winnetka, attended Miss Wood's school in Minneapolis and Carleton college.

The Rev. Mr. Zulch was born in Johannesburg, South Africa, and received his early education there. Later he studied at Nashota house, Wisconsin, and took graduate work at the General Theological seminary in New York.

The wedding will take place this summer.

At a tea yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Eric Gabrielson Goullaud of Brookline and West Falmouth, Mass., announced the engagement of their daughter, Eugenie Louise, to Robert Walter Mueller, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mueller of Arlington Heights.

Miss Goullaud is a graduate of Wheaton college, Norton, Mass. Mr. Mueller attended the Loomis school in Connecticut and was graduated from Kenyon college. The wedding will take place late this summer.

Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Sondel have announced the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Ann, to Joseph Davis Krueger, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Krueger. Miss Sondel will be graduated from the University of Chicago this June. Mr. Krueger was graduated from the University of Chicago last year. No date has been set for the wedding.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The enclosed hand was played in one of the better club tournaments in Philadelphia.

"West, dealer.

"Both sides vulnerable.

	NORTH ♠ 8 ♥ K 10 9 5 ♦ A Q 6 5 4 ♣ J 8 7
WEST ♠ K J 3 ♥ Q 7 ♦ K 9 ♣ A K Q 9 6 4		EAST ♠ Q 9 5 2 ♥ 6 3 2 ♦ J 10 8 2 ♣ 5 3
	SOUTH ♠ A 10 7 6 4 ♥ A J 8 4 ♦ 7 3 ♣ 10 2

"The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 club	1 diamond	Pass	1 spade
2 clubs	Pass	Pass	2 hearts
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

"I was South. I think my partner was rather optimistic when he bid four hearts. I believe he should have bid three hearts on this round, and held his breath. I justify my own second bid because of East's passes.

"West led three rounds of clubs, the third of which I ruffed. Now I could count that if the diamonds broke 3-3 and the trump queen lay right, my game contract would be cold. But if the diamond finesse was right and the king only singly guarded I would have to ruff two diamonds to establish the suit. Having already been forced to ruff a club, I would probably lose the timing of the hand by attempting to run the diamonds without loss. So I played a low diamond toward dummy and allowed West's nine spot to hold the trick. West returned a spade. I won with the ace and led a second diamond, capturing West's king. I returned a small diamond from dummy and ruffed with the ace of hearts. I then led the heart jack, took the finesse, and, of course, the hand became a laydown. It seems to me that this hand really demonstrates the advisability of giving up a trick as a safety play.

"G. E. G., Philadelphia."

Fond as I am of safety plays, I am afraid that this is not a particularly good example. Actually the contract could have been fulfilled in several different ways, but the point is that winning play depended entirely on a guess for the heart queen. If the diamond suit failed to break 3-3, declarer would not be able to afford a heart loser to the queen, but to avoid it would have to guess whether the queen was held by East or West. Suppose, for example, that we merely exchange the heart queen and the heart six in the East-West hands. Now the following simple line of play would succeed where the alleged safety play would fail:

Declarer ruffs the third club and takes the diamond finesse, cashing the ace and queen. He ruffs a diamond with the eight of trumps and [in the supposed lay of cards] West is unable to overruff. The spade ace now is cashed and the spade four is ruffed with the heart five. Another diamond is led and ruffed with the heart jack, and another spade with the heart nine. The ace and king of hearts now must make separately and declarer loses only one more trick.

I concede that my correspondent made an excellent guess for the heart queen, but even the best guess is not in the same class with a true safety play.

Tomorrow's Hand

New Orleans, La., April 9.—(AP)—Paul Waner today ended his holdout siege and signed a contract to play in the outfield for the Pittsburgh Pirates for a salary estimated to be about $12,000. He was 1939's last major league holdout.

A $1,200 Climax

DICK METZ.

Strong Finish Wins for Metz at Asheville

Asheville, N. C., April 9.—(AP)—Dick Metz, 27 year old Chicago professional, made a strong finish to win the top prize today in the $5,000 "Land of the Sky" open gold tournament. He finished golf's winter campaign as the leading money winner.

Metz's seventy-two hole aggregate of 284 for the tournament played over three Asheville courses gave him the top prize of $1,200 by a stroke margin and total earnings of $5,586 for the winter swing.

The Chicagoan finished the stretch battle with a par 71, barely outstripping Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., the fifty-four hole leader, and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., who tied for second place with 285.

Putting Ruins Revolta.

Revolta ran into a case of "putting jitters" the first day, taking six strokes on a hole after getting on a par 3 green. Had he made it in regulation figures instead of taking an eight, Revolta would have won by four shots.

Coming down the stretch today at the final hole he had a good chance of finishing the grind in a tie with Metz. His drive at the 18th hit a spectator and caromed into the bushes. He had to play a safety shot and there went his opportunity.

Hogan's Wood Shots Fail.

Entering the final 36 holes, Metz was three shots out of first place, with Gene Kunes of Philadelphia, leading with 138. Through 54 holes Hogan breezed around in 67 and moved out in front with a 212.

Hogan's wood shots went wild at the outset of the afternoon round and he dropped out of the race as Metz, Revolta and Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., playing in a threesome, battled down the final lap.

The leaders:

Dick Metz, Chicago	141	72	71—284
Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y.	145	67	73—285
Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill.	144	69	72—285
Gene Kunes, Philadelphia, Pa.	138	77	72—287
Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa.	143	73	71—287
Lloyd Mangrum, Los Angeles, Cal.	145	69	73—287
Ky Laffoon, Chicago	144	70	74—288
Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.	151	68	76—289
Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.	145	75	70—290
Johnny Sulla, Chicago	141	76	73—290
Jimmy Hines, Lakeville, N. Y.	143	72	75—290

Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., was runner-up to Metz in winter earnings with $4,632. Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., was third with $4,497.

DIETRICH STOPS GIANTS' RALLY; SOX WIN, 8 TO 6

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., April 9.—Business was brisk for the White Sox again today. They put over a neat deal with New York's Giants, the experts' choice in the coming National league race, by triumphing, 8 to 6, in an exhibition. The Chicagoans, now one game over the .500 mark in fifteen starts in the big league portion of their spring tour, had their bad moments. But in the main, they did sufficient hitting and revealed enough pitching to give New York enthusiasts a jolt.

Thornton Lee, the lefty who specializes on harassing the world champion Yankees, showed the Yankees' home town rivals how he does it. Lee pitched six innings, his mates piling up runs while he was keeping the Giants from doing much of importance. In the first three innings, he limited the Giants to two singles. His fourth and fifth innings weren't so good, three runs scoring on five hits, but to redeem himself he came back with a hitless session before turning the game and a big lead over to Bill Dietrich.

Both Nines Abuse Melton.

The Sox produced all their runs while Cliff Melton, the southpaw with the spacious ears, was performing. But the slat-like lad wasn't to blame for everything. The Giants were fuzzy in their fielding, especially in the fifth, when the Sox had their gayest time. Joe Moore fumbled, Harry Danning messed up a play at the plate, and Johnny McCarthy went blind at first base, where he was subbing for the great Zeke Bonura. Bonura was away in Memphis with the Giants' second team.

Probably the most satisfying development for Jim Dykes, the Sox boss, was the performance of Dietrich, the man with the questionable arm. Bill worked three innings. He yielded only three hits, one to an inning, and would have breezed through if Luke Appling and Al Bejma hadn't engaged in some peculiar defensive work. The ninth provided the best sample of Dietrich's effectiveness when, after a single by McCarthy and a pass to Frank Demaree, he fanned two and got the third out on a fly ball.

Sox Start Early.

The Sox mauled Melton for three hits and a run in the first inning. Owen opened the game with a single aimed at the L. S. U. football stadium back of right field. Steinbacher dumped a single in left center and Owen showed no concern about the outfield throwing power. He legged it for third. Walker flied to Moore and Owen went home after the catch. Appling also flied to Moore. Then, after Steinbacher had taken third on Kreevich's single to right, a delayed double steal was atempted, but it failed.

After an uneventful second, the Sox took a two run whack at Melton in the third. With one out, Steinbacher beat out a high bounding single to Whitehead. Walker, who is so far behind in his hitting exercise that he, as well as others, is worried, emerged from his agony long enough to double to left, Steinbacher scoring. Walker went to third on the throw in and an instant later scored on Appling's fly to Demaree.

Ex-Cubs Take a Hand.

The Sox picked up another run in the fourth simply because McNair was able to outguess the opponents. The little man led off with a double to left. A moment later Danning saw him taking a big lead off second and attempted to trap him. Instead of turning back, McNair stole third, thus being in position to score on Silvestri's sacrifice fly to Ott.

Lee had a little trouble in the same inning with the two Cub graduates. Demaree singled and Jurges tripled

Gonsalves Scores Twice at Pittsburgh.

BY OFFSIDE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 9.—The Manhattan soccer team of Chicago won the western championship today by defeating Morgan Sport club of Pittsburgh, 3 to 1, on a muddy field. Morgan played part of the game without Fred [Putt] Donelli, its captain, who was sent off by Referee J. Carlton of Buffalo, N. Y., at the end of forty-three minutes.

Manhattan was led by Billy Gonsalves, inside right, who made two of his team's goals, one in each half, and Clem Cuthbert, inside left, who scored the goal which gave Manhattan victory 5 to 4 in total goals in the two game series. Morgan's only goal came as a result of a penalty kick by Felix Mitchell, inside left, given for hands by Hugh Davidson after Morgan had rallied and Sloka had tipped the ball over Davidson's head. Mitchell's penalty kick beat Griffith cleanly.

Morgan Is Erratic.

Manhattan played inspired soccer, and capitalized repeatedly on Morgan's wild kicking.

Scarcely two minutes after Mitchell had given Morgan a two goal lead in the series Dick Hart made a poor clearance, permitting Lilly to cross the ball to Gonsalves 15 yards out in dead center of the goal. Gonsalves let go one of his characteristic drives which glanced off Full Back Donelli into the net to tie the game score at 1 to 1.

In spite of this, Morgan was having the better of the play and Griffith was kept busy handling shots from Sasfai and Sloka. Play had been very rough and Donelli had been warned for charging Salcido. In a collision with Gonsalves he deliberately pushed the Manhattan man down and Referee Carlton promptly ordered him off the field. Losing their captain seemed to break the morale of the Morgan team.

Manhattan Bears Down.

Entering the second half with the score tied, 1 to 1, Morgan took to the defensive, but failed to hold the swift, well directed Manhattan attack. Cuthbert slipped the ball across the Morgan goal area for Gonsalves in the tenth minute and Gonsalves scored with a terrific 14 yard drive which tied the series.

The Manhattan team left for Chicago tonight to prepare to meet the Eastern finalists, as yet undecided, for the national challenge cup championship. Lineups:

DIZZY DEAN.

Dizzy's Two Innings

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., April 9.—Following is the ball and strike record of Dizzy Dean's 1939 pitching debut against the St. Louis Browns today:

Fifth inning—Spindel [strike-strike-ball] grounded out. Kramer [ball-strike], singled off Dean's shins. Almada singled to right on first pitch. Mazzera [ball-strike-ball] flied to Reynolds. McQuinn grounded on first pitch, ball went between Mesner's heels for an error, Kramer scoring. Bell [strike-strike-ball-foul ball-ball-ball] walked, filling the bases. Clift [strike-ball-ball-strike-ball-ball] walked, forcing in Almada. Gryska flied to Gleeson on first pitch. Twenty-seven pitches.

Blanton Hurls No-Hit Game; Beats Indians

New Orleans, La., April 9.—(AP)—The veteran Cy Blanton, big righthanded pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates, hurled a near perfect game against Cleveland's Indians today in an exhibition contest. Blanton pitched the full nine innings, yielded no hits, and only one man reached first base. The Pirates won, 6 to 0.

The only blemish on the performance was supplied by Earl Averill, Indian outfielder, who ran the count to 3 and 2 in the sixth inning and then walked. The Indians hit only three balls solidly off Blanton, and all were fouls. He struck out four.

Johnny Allen, Cleveland pitching ace making his spring debut after an operation on his arm, struck Lee Handley, Pirate third baseman, in the head with a pitch in the eighth inning and a physician ordered Handley rushed to a hospital, where an examination revealed a concussion. He will be able to rejoin the club in a few days.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., April 9.—Dizzy Dean this afternoon made his 1939 pitching debut. He pitched the fifth and sixth innings in the Cubs' 13 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Mr. Wrigley's $185,000 chattel pitched 57 times to 12 Brownies, yielded three hits, one a scratch, walked two, and left the premises beaming. He said he was more confident than ever he'll be taking his regular turn this month, and that he can't see anything under 20 victories for himself in the 1939 season, not counting the games he intends to win from the Yankees, come October.

Two runs were scored during the great man's tenancy. Both of them were unearned because of an error by Steve Mesner, only Cub misplay of the afternoon.

5,000 Fans See Game.

Diz's debut was the highlight of the afternoon, but there were other features for a near capacity crowd of 5,000, which, by the way, turned out despite the fact the San Antonio newspapers had carried Manager Hartnett's Saturday night announcement that Dean would not pitch as previously promised.

Diz served his army hitch here at Fort Sam Houston, and is something of an idol among the men stationed here. They were disappointed at the supposed change anent Diz's assignment and stayed away almost en masse. Virtually the whole post had expressed an intention to overflow the premises if Diz would make his appearance.

A sizzling hot day—temperatures in the 90s—caused the reinstatement of the Dean unveiling schedule. The crowd started applauding when Diz went out to warm up, and accorded him a most friendly reception despite the fact that this is the training base of the Browns, and today was their farewell.

Dean Gets Better.

Dean's act was marred by the error which produced a run. Possibly because of his disappointment at the turn of events, Dean immediately walked two men. In his second inning Diz speeded up. He pitched only ten balls to retire the side and, oddly enough, six of these were tossed to the Brownie pitcher. He was pitching as well as he did last year when Manager Hartnett called a halt. As he left the arena every Cub shook Dean's hand and congratulated him with a measure of giddiness. He then was swathed with towels and escorted to the barracks by Dr. Andy Lotshaw.

Dean pitched. There was other pitching. Charley Root held the Browns to four hits in four innings. The one run St. Louis made in Charley's term was a homer by Mel Mazzera. Jack Russell finished and yielded one run, also driven in by Mazzera, on his second double.

Dean pitched, but the Cubs also had a rollicking offensive. For instance Hank Leiber knocked a mighty homer with the bases full in the second inning, and in the eighth Carl Reynolds and Mesner executed circuit smashes. The Cubs made 13 hits in all to complete a 33 hit total for

THE AMATEUR IS CHICAGO'S ONLY BIG GOLF SHOW

North Shore Will Be Set for September Event.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

There will be a golf tournament or two held in these parts within the next six months, but the most important to Chicago galleryites will be the only national event awarded to our town this year—the forty-third amateur tournament of the United States Golf association. This No. 1 show of the simon pure swingers will be held at the North Shore Country club in Glenview from Sept. 11 through Sept. 16.

September is more than a couple of full wood shots away on the competitive calendar, but a visit to North Shore and eighteen holes of conversation with Alex Cunningham, professional and course superintendent of the club, indicate that North Shore will be more than ready for the bright young men who will land here come September.

One fact about the tournament is certain as far as officials of North Shore are concerned. The championship battleground will be a fair one. There will be no nightmarish rough to plague the contestants with tee jitters. The bordering broccoli will be no tougher than that through which the members struggle.

A Course of Championships.

Officials of North Shore are proud of their course, and with reason. It has been the scene of the western open of 1928, the national open of 1933, and the national intercollegiate of 1936. President Harry Leighton, Sports and Pastimes Chairman Karl Bock, Grounds and Greens Chairman Harry H. Wolf, Professional Cunningham, and Manager Morgan Ellis all are prepared to break par when they tee off in the official conduct of the amateur.

Cunningham points out that while there will be no pesky abundance of rough, the field will find North Shore a golfing yard to test their every shot. A course with different tees [two and three to the hole], it can be made easy or hard. The medium course, which most members play, measures 6,768 yards. The national open of 1933 was played over a yardage of 6,940 yards. The distance for the amateur will be approximately 7,040 yards, in which good golf, without resorting to trick shots, will be rewarded.

North Shore's giant watering system, one of the first in the Chicago district, was not used during the 1933 open, after a request by the U. S. G. A. to keep it off. This followed a number of practice rounds in which the scoring was so high over the long, watered fairways that the club was asked to speed the course up by turning off the water. As a result, during the tournament, which was played in scorching temperatures, the players obtained almost unheard of distances.

Ideal for Long Irons.

The length of the course and the distances of several holes put a definite premium on long irons, according to Cunningham. These latter include the first, second, fourth, sixth, tenth, seventeenth and eighteenth, where the No. 3, 4 and 5 clubs will come in handy. The only real letup hole on the lot is the 344 yard eleventh. The other aforementioned holes range from 418 to 451 yards.

The lads who played in the 1933 open and 1936 intercollegiate will find a number of changes in the location of tees. These are the second, which is back almost against the fence; the fourteenth, set back 60 yards; the fifteenth, now twenty yards back, and the sixteenth, where the tee has been moved twenty yards to the left.

National amateur galleries will be treated to some of the best golf of the year in those tournament matches that leave the fifteenth green all even, for the club is proudest of its three finishing holes. The removal of the sixteenth tee to the fence along Wagner road makes this hole a great par three. The pear shaped green guarded by a small bunker on the left and a larger, bellying one on the right, now demands absolute accuracy off the tee, 165 yards from the green.

Comes the eighteenth, the 429 yard hole where Ralph Guldahl missed the four foot putt which cost him a tie with Johnny Goodman for the 1933 open championship. Off the tee, the player is confronted by trees on the right and the water tank on the left. A trap which crosses the fairway from 180 to 215 yards out is ready to catch a missed drive. There is a fairway trap 50 yards from the built-up green, with another on the right. This latter is where Guldahl put his second shot on the fateful seventy-second of 1933.

Cunningham refuses to be teased into any predictions on who will win in September, but points out three lads to be watched. They are Willie Turnesa, present champion, who played great golf in the intercollegiate at North Shore; Johnny Goodman, winner of the 1933 open and the 1937 amateur, and Jack Hoerner home club champ these last two years.

ESPENSEN SEEKS TO BREAK KIST'S STRING TONIGHT

Don Espensen, Minneapolis welterweight, will attempt to break Dick Kist's string of nineteen professional starts without a defeat in an eight round bout tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

It will be their second meeting, Espensen holding the 1938 Danville, Ill., sectional Golden Gloves 147 pound winner to a six round draw in the last show held in the Marigold arena two weeks ago.

Many spectators thought Espensen, a superior boxer, had earned the decision. The rugged Kist rallied in the closing rounds to even it up.

Kist never has gone more than six rounds, but this is not expected to handicap his chances of continuing unbeaten. Dick has displayed considerable stamina in victories over such fighters as Eddie Carroll, Bobby La Monte, Wilbur Dunn, Steve Padon, and Johnny Rock. He will depend on this asset to carry him to victory.

In an eight round secondary feature Buddy Scott, promising light heavyweight prospect of Dallas, Tex., is paired with Al Reiss, heavyweight of Detroit. Al Globe, Los Angeles 174 pounder, and Ernie Valente, Milwaukee slugger, also meet in an eight rounder. A six round opener brings together Tommy Pallatin, South Bend welterweight, and Fernie Bacca, El Paso, Tex.

Co-Promoters Sam Abruscato and Bill Rand will appear at this afternoon's meeting of the Illinois boxing commission with an application to have a match between Nate Bolden and Oscar Rankin sanctioned as a colored middleweight championship event. The match is to be held in White City Friday. The promoters also will ask to have the contest set for twelve rounds. Rankin has agreed to come in at the division limit of 160 pounds, but his ability to make this mark is questioned.

Jim McMillen and Wladyslaw Talun, giant wrestler of Poland, will be principals in a handicap bout featuring the card this evening in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Talun has promised to throw McMillen twice in 30 minutes or forfeit the match. McMillen weighs 220 pounds, sixty-five less than his foreign rival.

DODGERS NEVER STAND STILL; BUY POFFENBERGER

Macon, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—Sale of Cletus Elwood Poffenberger, 23 year old right handed pitcher, to the Brooklyn Dodgers was announced today by the Detroit Tigers. Poffenberger was scheduled to come from Beaumont, Tex., to Greenville, S. C., to join the Dodgers.

Poffenberger came up to the Tigers from the Texas league two years ago and showed much promise. However, he was in trouble with the management frequently over training regulations and General Manager Jack Zeller of the Tigers recently announced that any major league club was welcome to Poffenberger at the waiver price of $7,500.

A year ago Poffenberger won six games and lost seven before being sent to Toledo, of the American association. This spring Poffenberger arrived at camp at Lakeland, Fla., ten days late and overweight. He was sent to Beaumont to join the Toledo club.

Scratch My Back, I'll Scratch Yours.

Helper J. B. submits this from a Crookston, Minn., newspaper: "Billy Noonan in his newspaper, the Baudette Region, wonders why it is that an editor can say one hundred nice things about a man and he will never let on that he read them. But let the editor run one item the man doesn't like and he will be as frosty as a window at forty degrees below zero. Well, for going out of his way to say nice things we cite the editor of the Watseka, Ill., Republican, who printed the following news item: 'Miss Jennie Jones and Bob Henry were married at the Jones mansion last night. The bride is a daughter of Constable Jones, who has made a good officer and will undoubtedly be reëlected this spring. He offers a fine horse for sale in another column of this issue. The groom runs a grocery store on Main street and is a steady patron of our advertising columns. They were married by the Rev. Josiah Butterworth, who last week called at his office and gave us a nice order for handbills. Jennie and Bob left on the 10 o'clock train for Chicago to visit the bride's uncle who, we understand, has lots of money and cancer.'"

A Mother's Reward.

Son, your father was a soldier
And so was your father's wife.
He died in the scrap in the Argonne,
She fought in the battle of life.

Be proud of your mother's, too,
For she earned her decorations
In a struggle fought for you.

Your manhood is her victory,
Her campaign is over now;
And your soldier-mother's medals
Are those wrinkles in her brow.

Paul Derringer, who worked the first four innings, yielded three hits, the Sox bunching them in the second inning for two runs. Leading by one run in the sixth, the Reds added four in that inning on five hits, including Riggs' homer with one on. Wilson's double drove home two others. Score:

for the Giants' first run, but Lee quieted the next two batters.

The Sox did some more hitting in the fifth and the Giants were a bit comical; so the scoring of four runs was simple. Steinbacher opened with a double and scored on Walker's single. Appling was stopped on a fly to Ott. Kreevich singled and when Moore fumbled the hit Walker went to third and Kreevich to second. Kuhel grounded to McCarthy, who threw to the plate too late to get Walker. McCarthy raced into foul territory thinking he was on the tail of McNair's popup. But the ball fell safe for a single, Kreevich scoring and Kuhel taking third and McNair second on the throw in. Silvestri flied to left and Kuhel scored. McNair thought it a good idea to get home from second on the same play, but it wasn't. He was nipped.

Moore Gets Triple.

Lee's difficulties in the Giants' fifth began with Whitehead's single past Kuhel. Moore tripled in to the distant right field corner, scoring Whitehead. Ott spanked a long fly to Kreevich and Moore scored. Danning tried to revive the rally with a single, but McCarthy grounded to McNair and Demaree flied to Kreevich.

Dietrich was pitching in the seventh, but the Giants scored a run off Walker. Ott walked with one out and Danning fanned. McCarthy flied to left. Walker made a bum guess as to where the ball was coming down, and it dropped for a double, Ott scoring. Demaree then walked, but Jurges flied to left and Walker caught the ball.

Infield Has Lapse.

The Sox collapsed around second base in the eighth, thus enabling the Giants to score twice on one hit. Hafey singled with one out. Whitehead grounded to Bejma, who had supplanted McNair. Bejma threw wild on a possible double play. Moore hit a cinch double play grounder to Appling, but Appling threw wild on this one, Hafey scoring and Whitehead going to third, whence he counted the last run on Ott's sacrifice fly.

The Sox move over to Shreveport, La., tomorrow to play the Pirates.

A Couple of Cub Cripples Get Together

Mazzera's homer with one out in the Brownie first halved the Cub lead. It was a 370 foot shot over the fence in deep left center. McQuinn walked, but Bell hit into a double play, Mesner to Herman to Cavarretta.

The scene for Leiber's terrific homer was set thuswise: Root walked and after Hack had fanned, Herman reached first on Clift's error. Gleeson beat out an infield tap, loading the bases. Leiber then drove the ball to left center, and it hit a light post 25 feet above the top of the fence directly above a 381 foot marker. After Root, Herman, and Gleeson had trotted across the plate Kress threw out Marty, then Cavarretta singled to center and advanced to third when the ball got past Almada. Mancuso fouled to Spindel.

Three More Cub Runs in Third.

The Cub third produced three runs, Mesner singled and went to third on Root's single. Hack popped to Berardino, then Herman walked, loading the bases. When Gleeson also walked, forcing Mesner across, Mills was given the bounce and Kramer took over. Leiber walked, forcing in Root. A forceout by Marty put Herman across, after which Cavarretta bounded to McQuinn.

The Cubs went scoreless in the fourth and fifth innings, a span during which the Browns made two runs off Dean, but added a run in the sixth on a pass to Cavarretta, Mancuso's single and a force play.

There was home run socking in the Cub eighth. Reynolds led off with one over the left field wall. Later on, after Garbark had singled, Mesner banged one over the wall in dead center, which is ornamented with a 387 foot marker.

The Browns made a run off Russell in the eighth. Berardino, who had been hit by a pitched ball, got home on Mazzera's second double.

The teams will play in Dallas tomorrow. Bill Lee will start against Russ Van Atta.

Lil' Augie's Home

The Cubs had their own Easter parade yesterday when another of their number, Augie Galan, came into town to join the Chicago chapter of crippled athletes.

Galan, however, resembled anything but a cripple. He was a tanned and huskier Galan than Chicago ever has seen. Augie wanted to talk much more about the fifteen pounds he put on his lean frame than the swollen left knee that brought him to Chicago to provide more activity for Dr. John F. Davis, the Cubs' physician.

The let's-see-what's-wrong-with-Galan skit will be put on at 9 o'clock this morning in the Illinois Masonic hospital, which also houses Dick Bartell, the team's No. 1 cripple of the year.

Galan's knee did not appear to be swollen perceptibly and Augie reported it had diminished during the day's train ride from Texas. X-ray pictures will be taken of the knee.

Lake Shore Athletic Club to Hold Sport Movie Show

A program of sports movies will be presented tomorrow in the Lake Shore Athletic club, under the direction of Edmund Loftus, chairman of athletics. The pictures will include "Baseball," the official National league film; "Golfing with the Masters," made at the Augusta national tournament, and diving films of Jane Fauntz Manske, former Olympic star, at Silver Springs, Fla.

HUNGARIANS LOSE, 3-1.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 9.—[Special.]—Scoring three goals in the first half, the Philadelphia German-Americans easily defeated the Bethlehem Hungarians, 3 to 1, in an American Soccer league game today.

SURVEY REVEALS WOOD DUCKS USE NESTING BOXES

BY BOB BECKER.

Wood ducks which migrated into the Illinois river bottoms during the last few weeks found hundreds of brand new nesting boxes waiting for them, every one in a desirable location near the river. The Illinois Natural History Survey has erected 454 of these new nesting boxes built of two inch rough cypress lumber.

The boxes are 10 by 10 inches square and 24 inches deep, inside dimensions. The entrance, 4¼ inches in diameter, is placed 16 inches above the bottom of the box. All of these nesting boxes are placed in trees, about fifteen feet above the ground.

Conducts Duck Survey.

An intensive study of the wood duck in the Illinois river valley was made by Arthur S. Hawkins and Frank C. Bellrose, Illinois Natural History Survey technicians, in 1938.

The survey found that there is a scarcity of natural nesting sites in hollow trees for the wood duck that wants to hatch out a brood of ducklings. The survey's donation of boxes to the ducks is the result of this finding. The first slab boxes, installed as an experiment more than a year ago by the United States Biological survey, have been accepted by the wood ducks.

About one out of seven was occupied, Hawkins and Bellrose found. One wood duck was observed on one of the new boxes on March 13 of this year.

Don't Mind Humans.

The game technicians found that wood ducks do not object to nesting near human habitations. One of the best occupied groups of slab nests was close to a group of summer cottages at Lake Chautauqua, near Havana.

With the wood ducks readily taking to artificial nesting boxes, Illinois has an excellent chance to increase the population of this beautiful bird.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A SPECIAL SHAVE CREAM

IT'S NOT A SOAP
NEEDS NO SHAVING BRUSH
Not Greasy ... Leaves Skin Soft

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men is required to shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed a special cream for daily shavers. It's called Glider. With no soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. After washing face thoroughly with soap and warm water to remove razor-dulling grit, spread on Glider quickly and easily with your fingers. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich, smooth cream. It softens each whisker right down to the skin, yet forms a protective layer over your face to keep blade from scraping. Swiftly and gently your razor glides over your skin without tearing or irritating. Like a cold cream, Glider helps smooth and soften your skin and prevent chapping and roughness. Glider is the result of nearly 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations.

AVERAGE FAMILY BUYING INCOME PLACED AT $2,116

New York, April 9.—(AP)—The effective buying income of the average American family in 1938 was $2,116, the magazine Sales Management said today in its tenth annual survey of buying power.

The average individual American had approximately $492 to spend last year, it added.

The nation's estimated total income for 1938, set at $63,274,609,000, was about 12 per cent less than in 1937, but half again above the 1932 depression low of $41,000,000,000, the publication said.

New York was first among states with a family average of $3,609; Nevada was second with $2,777, and California third with $2,733.

Of major cities, Des Moines, Ia., was first with a per family effective spending income of $3,778.

Effective buying power as calculated by the magazine, is based, not only on actual cash incomes and cash expenditures, but also nonmoney income of farm and village residents, such as free rent, poultry, dairy, fruit and vegetable resources, etc.

JONES PREDICTS 'LITTLE LOSS' ON LOANS BY RFC

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, predicted tonight "very little ultimate loss" from the government's vast lending program.

In an address sponsored by the United States New York world fair commission, Jones said temporary government agencies had authorized about $20,000,000,000 in credits to provide employment and promote the economic stability of the country.

The RFC, the government's principal lending agency, has paid expenses from earnings, including interest on money borrowed to lend, and has accumulated more than $200,000,000 operating surplus, Jones said. The RFC board, he said, regards this surplus as sufficient to cover any probable losses.

Jones said the RFC had authorized more than $10,000,000,000 in private credits but that it never had outstanding at one time as much as $3,000,000,000.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

BREWSTER AERO BUSINESS SETS RECORD IN YEAR

Continues to Expand in 1939 Quarter.

Business of the Brewster Aeronautical corporation reached record heights in 1938 and has continued to expand in 1939, James Work, president, said in his annual report to stockholders yesterday.

Last year's net earnings were $233,878, equal to 66 cents a share, compared with 1937 figures of $19,227 and 5 cents a share.

New Military Models.

The company has already received orders for government airplanes and expects to participate in business resulting from the government's new defense program, he said. New models of military planes are being developed, Work added.

At the close of March the company's unfilled orders reached a record total at $2,381,419, compared with $720,000 on the corresponding date in 1938, he said.

Pullman Company Net $913,990.

The Pullman company, transportation subsidiary of Pullman, Inc., reported net income of $913,990 for the first two months of 1939, after taxes and other charges and after setting aside $342,104 for amortization of its air conditioning investment.

Investors' Guide

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CARRIES NO PASSENGERS.

Investors' Guide: I'm an investor and railroad fan, get a lot of fun out of inspecting and riding streamliners when I have the chance, and thought I knew a bit about railroads—until today. Now some one tells me there is a railroad operating in and about Chicago which carries no passengers, owns little or no equipment, and yet makes money consistently. Is this a fact? If so, I would appreciate your telling me what this road is and something about it.—A. F. M.

Answer: That's right. It is the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad. This is a switching road and carries no passengers or freight; it switches cars through the terminus of Chicago for other lines. As you may realize, no railroad runs through Chicago and this accounts for the unusual position held by the Belt Line.

This road operates 628 miles of track in the Chicago metropolitan area, including 124 miles of first track and 425 miles of yard and siding tracks. In effect, its trackage forms a circle or belt around the city. It owns more than 100 locomotives, almost as many cabooses, and a few road cars, but it isn't interested in club cars, sleeping cars or diners. Each year this road switches more than a million cars.

Stock of the Belt Line is owned by four roads—30 per cent each by the New York Central and Michigan Central, and 20 per cent each by the Chicago and North Western and the Milwaukee roads. Net income in recent years has been as follows:

	Net income.	Times fixed chgs. earn.
1938	$ 881,835	2.98
1937	1,263,211	3.81
1936	1,611,288	4.52
1935	1,322,091	3.81
1929	3,086,699	7.79

Funded debt, consisting principally of noncallable 4 and 4½ per cent bonds due in 1957, amounts to $9,250,000. These bonds are guaranteed by the stockholder roads.

HOW MANY STOCKHOLDERS?

Investors' Guide: Several companies in which I own stock have given the total number of their stockholders in recent proxy solicitations. I am interested in several other companies, although I do not yet own any of their securities. These are Anaconda Copper, General Motors, Westinghouse Electric, Western Union, Studebaker, Johns-Manville, and American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation. How many stockholders do these have?—N. F.

Anaconda Copper	107,917
General Motors	388,650
Westinghouse Electric	44,418
Western Union	30,772
Studebaker	25,020
Johns-Manville	7,752
American Radiator	52,856

Reserve Board Lashes Divided Rule of Money

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The federal reserve board told congress today the nation's banking and monetary system was "weakened" by confusion of authority over its control, including a conflict of responsibilities between the board and the treasury.

In a statement to the senate and house banking committees, the board urged that congress "determine the objectives by which the monetary and banking authorities shall be guided."

The study, the board suggested, also should include "the factors that obstruct the flow of money through the channels of investment, production, and distribution."

Hint of War Fear Seen.

A hint that the board may have had in mind the possible need for emergency monetary action in the event of war was seen by some analysts in the following assertion:

"Notwithstanding the limitations upon the influence of monetary and credit action on economic conditions, the board is convinced of the importance of such action at certain times, and feels strongly the necessity of having the mechanism of monetary and banking control at all times in condition to function effectively in the public interest."

Cites Overlapping Laws.

The board said that the 15,000 banks operating at present "are subject to conflicting and overlapping laws and jurisdictions, which result in a confusion of duties and responsibilities among different federal and state authorities."

Powers over the supply of currency and bank reserves are split between the treasury and federal reserve system, the board said, asserting: "The powers over this supply possessed by the treasury now outweigh those of the system."

FACTORIES' 3 MONTH PRODUCTION SECOND HIGHEST SINCE 1930

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The department of commerce said today the output of American factories in the first quarter of this year was second only to 1937 for similar months since 1930.

In some instances the pace was even faster than in 1929—particularly for factory consumption of rubber and wool, hosiery shipments, and production of shoes, gasoline, and cigarets.

The favorable comparison, the department said, was made in spite of the fact that the rapid upturn in business which began last summer leveled temporarily into a "plateau."

In March, the report added, some manufacturing industries expanded seasonally, and retail trade began its spring rise. Business failures were less numerous than last year, but more than in 1937.

BRAZIL LAUNCHES PROGRAM EASING EXCHANGE RULES

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 9.—(AP)—Brazil today put into effect a new foreign exchange policy easing the severe restrictions imposed by President Getulio Vargas in 1937.

A decree announced by the government last night freed 70 per cent of all remittances abroad from government control, apparently as a result of Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha's promise to the United States government for a freer exchange.

The government retained control over 30 per cent of foreign exchange by authorizing its purchase only by the Bank of Brazil at an official rate which has not been disclosed.

Week's Orders for Lumber in U. S. Above Year Ago

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The National Lumber Manufacturers' association reported tonight new business in the week ended April 1 was 26 per cent above that of the corresponding week of 1938. Production increased 8 per cent. During the week 516 reporting mills produced 190,671,000 feet of softwoods and hardwoods combined, shipped 220,646,000 feet and booked orders for 218,003,000 feet. Revised figures for the preceding week: Mills, 550; production, 189,542,000 feet; shipments, 207,078,000 feet, and orders, 221,130,000 feet.

FARM MARKETING RECEIPTS SHOW FEBRUARY DROP

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—Receipts from farm marketing in February amounted to $430,000,000, a reduction of 6 per cent from the total for February, 1938, the bureau of agriculture economics reported today.

Receipts from the sale of principal farm products in February were 9 per cent higher in the western states, 7 per cent higher in the west north-central states, and 1 per cent higher in the north Atlantic states than in February, 1938.

Decreases reported for the other three regions were 30 per cent in the south-central states, 22 per cent in the south Atlantic states, and 3 per cent in the east north-central states.

Furniture Stores Report 94c Profit on $100 Sales

Large furniture stores had net profit equal to 94 cents for each $100 of net sales in 1938, Roscoe R. Rau, Chicago, executive vice president of the National Retail Furniture association, said yesterday. He made public a preview of the sixth annual report of the controlers' division of the association. Medium sized stores had a profit of 32 cents per $100.

U.S. Monopoly Group to Make Inquiry on Oil

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The monopoly investigating committee announced today that it will investigate the gigantic oil business this summer, using a new type of procedure designed to let the industry tell its own story.

Axtell Byles will seek oil leaders' aid in inquiry.

Senator O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], chairman of the committee, said the study would make possible a "thorough going" test of this procedure "as a means of developing objective testimony." He indicated that if it succeeded other industries would be investigated similarly.

Invited to Take Initiative.

As outlined by O'Mahoney, the procedure will give the industry an opportunity to take the initiative in developing the information to be brought out in the hearings.

The chairman said representatives of various segments in the industry had been invited to assist in designating the witnesses and to file statements and reports with the committee. The only limitation to be placed on them, he said, would be that "opinions, including any criticism that may be made of existing governmental or intra-industry policies, be supported by actual evidence."

He said, however, that the committee would call witnesses other than those suggested by the industry "to make certain that an adequate presentation is made of all available information with respect to the manner in which the oil industry is conducted."

O'Mahoney said that Axtell Byles, president of the American Petroleum institute—largest trade association in the oil industry—had agreed to seek the coöperation of leaders of the industry.

He added that public hearings would be started "not later than the first of June."

Tells Phases of Inquiry.

"The inquiry," O'Mahoney said, "would naturally center on problems of production, refining, transportation, and distribution, with particular reference to the effect upon employment and upon the prices which are charged for the finished product, as well as the effect of industrial and corporate organization upon the industry."

Answers will be sought, he said, particularly to these two questions:

"What is the exact relationship between the independent producer and the independent distributor upon the one hand and the major units in production and distribution upon the other? What restraints, if any, exist upon free enterprise?"

22 STEEL FIRMS HAVE 10 MILLION LOSS FOR YEAR

2 of 17 Earn Return on Common Stock.

Twenty-two steel companies, representing 92.5 per cent of the nation's ingot capacity, had a $10,936,841 combined deficit after all charges but before dividends in 1938, the magazine Steel's annual financial survey said yesterday. In 1937 the same producers had $211,479,861 net profit.

The companies' total income before deducting bond interest was $22,061,470, compared with $241,938,183 in 1937. The year's income, insufficient to meet funded debt interest, indicated a 0.57 per cent return on total capitalization, the lowest since 1934.

Taxes paid by twenty-one of the twenty-two companies, Steel said, totaled $94,514,280 in 1938, against $159,992,152 in 1937.

Net Sales Slump.

For eighteen of the reporting firms operations averaged 39.3 per cent of ingot capacity in 1938, against 71.5 per cent in 1937.

Net sales of nineteen companies totaled $1,015,773,603, a 39.2 per cent decrease from the 1937 figure of $1,670,958,840. The leading producer did not report net sales, however, the publication said.

Of the seventeen largest producers only two showed earnings on common stock—National Steel corporation, with $3.03 a share, and Inland Steel company, with $3.11 a share.

Losses per common share, after allowing for preferred dividend requirements, averaged $1.73, contrasted with average earnings of $4.92 in 1937.

Week's Orders Decline.

In its weekly review Steel said the downtrend in new business in the steel business was accelerated.

"Caution among consumers is evident in the letdown in new business but, since buying for some time has been only for early needs, users will be unable to remain out of the market for an extended period," Steel commented.

The decline in production of ingot steel last week was estimated by the magazine at 1 point, leaving the rate at 53.5 per cent of capacity. A year ago operations were at 32 per cent. Production at Pittsburgh remained at 49 per cent and at Chicago 53.5 per cent. Substantial reductions in output were made in Buffalo, New England, Cincinnati, and Detroit districts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 9.—Stock market prices were badly mangled last week as traders stuffed offerings into the grinder on fears fed by developments in Europe and discouragement at the trend of events at home.

Prices declined 2 to 13 points in leading issues. All classes of stocks were hammered down, with the steel group one of the weakest and the airplane issues resisting the best.

Trading was in large volume throughout the week, with the turnover averaging more than a million shares each day. The ticker tape frequently ran behind transactions on the floor. There were 744 issues which reached new low marks for the year or longer.

Kodak Falls 23¾ Points.

Only on Wednesday did the market make a show of firmness. In each of the other sessions it gave way without any rallies of consequence.

Large losses were the rule. The sharpest decline was made by Eastman Kodak, which tumbled 23¾ points. Chrysler skidded 13 points.

Sears-Roebuck was off 7½ points, International Business Machines 7¾, Bethlehem Steel 9¼, United States Steel 6¾, General Motors 5⅜, United States Rubber 5⅞, International Harvester 6, American Telephone 4¾, General Electric 3⅜, Anaconda 3¼, and New York Central 2⅝.

Watch Events Abroad.

Financial circles centered their attention on events abroad, but the occupation of Albania by Italy and fears that Germany would soon move against Poland were not considered the only reasons for the bad break in stocks.

Those in close touch with the situation report a growing feeling in Wall street that the Roosevelt administration has turned its attention from promoting recovery at home and is now placing emphasis on the international situation to cover up its failures. It is felt the business "appeasement" program has been shelved. Hope for real changes in the capital gains tax is said to have evaporated.

UNIONS' RIVALRY BLAMED IN COAL PACT DEADLOCK

Operator Sees Firms Wedged in Middle.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 9.—(AP)—A prominent operator said today negotiation of a new contract for the nation's bituminous coal miners had been prolonged by rivalry between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress for Industrial Organization.

At the same time another source said coal consuming industries shortly would begin to feel the pinch of reduced supplies.

The shutdown of the soft coal mines went into its second week today with representatives of the United Mine Workers and operators none too hopeful for quick settlement of the contract difficulties.

"In Middle," Says Operator.

The operator, who asked that his name be withheld, said rivalry between the Progressive Miners union [A. F. of L.] and the U. M. W. A. [C. I. O.] had "wedged" producers in the middle.

The Progressive Miners claim to have set up locals in 224 bituminous mines, owned by 112 individual companies. William Green, A. F. of L. president, promised the organization "fullest support." Progressives last week asked a voice in the negotiations.

The U. M. W. A. has demanded either the closed shop or removal of a clause in the recently expired agreement which provides a $1 fine for each union member in a mine illegally closed by strike and a $2 fine on the operators for each man if the producers illegally shut down a mine.

338,000 Miners Idle.

Producers today were reluctant to predict how long the present deadlock, which has thrown 338,000 men out of work, may continue.

Some Pittsburgh dealers said enough coal was on hand in western Pennsylvania to supply requirements for at least two weeks, but others said effects of the mine shutdown would be felt by the end of the week.

Negotiations between members of a subcommittee of U. M. W. officials and operators were to resume in New York Monday. Federal Mediator James Dewey was expected to sit in on the discussions.

Miners Appeal for Relief.

Charleston, W. Va., April 9.—(AP)—Leaders of West Virginia's 100,000 jobless coal miners appealed tonight to Gov. Homer A. Holt for relief funds denied the miners under a departmental ruling.

William Blizzard, vice president of the United Mine Workers, district No. 17, said a conference with the governor had been arranged for tomorrow.

Director John S. Stump Jr. of the department of unemployment compensation has ruled the mines were closed in a labor dispute and the miners were declared ineligible for benefits.

JOBS IN ILLINOIS CUT BY 1938 DIP IN RAILS' BUYING

Illinois business and employment have suffered severely as a result of declining railway purchases, the Illinois Manufacturers' association said in a survey issued yesterday. The railroads spent only $83,653,000 in Illinois in 1938 for equipment, materials, and fuel, compared with $228,020,000 in 1929, the association said.

The 64 per cent reduction has been a severe handicap to the 200 railway equipment companies in Chicago and to those in other parts of the state, which ranks second to Pennsylvania in supplying equipment to the carriers, the association said.

Thousands of employés would be added to the pay rolls of Illinois corporations supplying the railroads if the carriers' purchases returned to the 1929 level, the survey said.

Railway purchases throughout the United States amounted to $1,725,721,000 in 1929 and dropped to $633,111,000 in 1938.

Easter! Day Brings a Gay Parade as Young Chicagoans Dress Up and Go to Church and Sunday School

Elizabeth Lundberg (left), 4 years old, Freddie Schacht, 5, and Nancy Ross (right), 4, attending services at the Wilmette Baptist church. Children added gayety to yesterday's colorful Easter parade.

Maureen Sheridan Vick, attired in her new Easter costume and walking to services at the Fourth Presbyterian church, attracts the attention of Joseph McGowan, traveling by scooter to unannounced destination.
